Rhodes Declares Energy Emergency

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Representatives of Ohio's state government met today with still bewildered Dayton residents to explain the realities of a newly ordered energy crisis plan.

Under the emergency system, schools in the 24-county western Ohio area served by the Dayton Power and Light Co. have been ordered closed for 30 days and many businesses have been restricted to a 40-hour week.

"If we're going to survive this winter, we're going to have to take extreme measures," said Robert Ryan, chief of the state's Energy and Resources Development Agency.

"Unless we do something now, the situation is going to be more serious in the future."

Ryan spoke at a meeting crowded with 200 representatives of the Dayton community, including school leaders, business officials and city and county administrators.

Many of them admitted their confusion and bitterness about the energy emergency which was declared late Thursday by Gov. James A. Rhodes. "It is our contention that the people deserve to know why their children must be the first to make sacrifices when those sacrifices involve the future of this community," said John Maxwell, superintendent of Dayton public schools.

Natural gas is not the only energy source in short supply in Dayton, Ryan said.

"We are within inches of being out of propane and inches of being out of oil," said Ryan.

He said unless a way could be found to get propane to DP&L, the energy emergency might have to be extended.

Dayton school board President William Goodwin said Thursday the district would lose $210,000 a day if schools closed and a 30-day shutdown would cost it up to $6 million.

Rhodes declared the energy emergency because of increasing difficulties by the Dayton utility in keeping gas available to residential customers. So far, residences have not been affected by major cutbacks for industrial and commercial customers by DP&L and other major gas utilities across the state.

Ryan explained to the groups that the rest of Ohio is in a "little better shape than Dayton, but it's going to come to the rest of the state."

That means, Ryan said, that schools throughout the state are being asked to close, but cannot be forced to do so unless Rhodes makes the entire state an emergency area.

Ryan told a news conference Thursday that he and C. Luther Heckman, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio discussed possible statewide school closings with the education department and learned there are statutory problems.

They said they plan to meet next week with legislative leaders to discuss a possible law change under which schools could be exempted from a statutory requirement that classes be held 183 days each school year.

Carter Down To Business

WASHINGTON (AP) — The keys finally his, Jimmy Carter opened the White House today to the once-fellow outsiders who helped put him there, a triumph celebrated in hopes that their "joy and friendship and caring for each other" would sustain the Republic for the next four years.

After a rigorous inaugural day highlighted by a remarkable walk in the first light of his presidency — and the traditional waltzes on the first night of it — the 39th chief executive settled back today to welcome friends and top appointees to his new home.

The President's schedule officially listed only four items, all receptions. The first, at 10 a.m., was for the men and women who had entertained him at their own homes during his long political quest.

Then, in succession, came meetings with his Cabinet and governors, with party officials and labor and business leaders and, finally in late afternoon, with the Georgia congressional delegation.

Thursday night, Carter and his wife Rosalynn climaxed the inaugural day with a rapid-fire tour of seven parties spread throughout the city at four hotels, the railroad station, a government building and an armory. Each was jammed with thousands of persons, all of whom paid $25 to get in, a bargain price as inaugural balls go.

Accompanied by daughter Amy, 9, at the first two nighttime events, the President and Mrs. Carter took several whirls around the dance floor, and he kissed her on the cheek once or twice.

At each event, Carter made a brief, campaign-style talk, asking over and over, "Wasn't this a good day?"

"Yes!" came the inevitable roar. "Isn't this a great country?" Again, cheers.

"Can it be greater in the future — and will you help me?"

And with the next outburst, Carter, in tuxedo, went on to tell the partygoers that six years ago Rosalynn had worn the same floor-length blue and gold gown, when he was elected governor of Georgia. "Don't you like my wife's old dress?" he'd ask.

"Today is the greatest day in the life of the Carter family," he said. "I see here so many of you who helped me when I didn't have any friends ... I had worn the same floor-length blue and gold gown, when he was elected governor of Georgia. "Don't you like my wife's old dress?" he'd ask.

Local School Officials Have No Word On Closing

City and county school officials have taken steps to reduce heating fuel consumption and are hoping the state does not order schools here closed during the cold weather energy crisis. Today was the first day of classes for the county schools in a week.

Edward Martin, superintendent of the three county school districts, will "abide" by the governor's decision, although he is concerned with the statutory requirements for student attendance.

Martin has not been asked to close the school systems as of press time.

"We've done everything that can be done in all our schools," Martin said, including lowering thermostats and eliminating all but essential extracurricular activities in the buildings.

Any future school shut-downs will have to be made up according to current Ohio Revised Code statutes, he said.

Fritz Jacobs, Superintendent of Circleville City Schools, stated that he had not received any official notice from the Governor's office, and "until such time as we do receive an official notice, we do not plan anything out of the ordinary as far as our operations are concerned."

Jacobs stated that he felt that it would be counterproductive, and while some energy might be conserved, it would cost schools a great deal of money.

He also stated that statutes would have to be changed in order to accommodate the operation of school past the end of June, and "a great deal of money would have to be spent in decommissioning a school building, as well as re-commissioning that building when school opens again. I feel that a statement of facts would be in order before such decisions are made on the spur of the moment."

John Henn, local superintendent of Logan Elm Schools, said today he was unaware of a request from the governor to close schools for a 30-day period during the current energy crisis.

"I think they are getting a little excited," Henn said. "Some of these days the sun is going to shine and the weather warm up and then what are we going to do?"

ROUNDTOWN

IT was back to school today for students of Westfall, Teays Valley and Logan Elm Schools ... Circleville Schools resumed sessions Thursday ... This has been one of the longest "weather vacations" for many a year locally and the schools are already revising calendars to make up for some of the missed days ... With the weather so cold and most of the kids confined to their houses during the "vacation", most were undoubtedly glad to get back in school.

THE first of four prayer breakfasts preceding the Pre Lenten Preaching Mission will be held 7 a.m. Saturday at Pickaway Arms ... Charles Hickey will be in charge of the program ... music will be provided by Mrs. Cheryl McKinney and Mrs. Linda Blair from the Logan Elm Baptist Mission ... The theme for these breakfasts is Spiritual Community Unity.

Ryan and Heckman said the situation throughout the state will continue to be monitored closely to see if further actions by the governor will be necessary.

Heckman said unless the weather warms and more supplies of gas are found, he can foresee a statewide emergency being declared "maybe in a week or maybe within three weeks."

Under a 1974 law, the governor is empowered to deal with energy shortages in three steps, the first being the declaration of an alert. The second stage is an emergency, while the third is the declaration of an energy crisis.

The latter empowers the governor to relocate supplies of energy within the state, although Rhodes said last week this would be difficult because of control over interstate pipelines by the Federal Power Commission.

Heckman said that while gas

State Medicaid Audit Could Have Nationwide Effect

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Federal recommendations that come out of a precedent-setting audit of the state's Medicaid program could change the system nationwide, a state legislative budget officer said Thursday.

The precedent being established is not that the General Accounting Office is studying the state program, which it frequently does, but that it has undertaken an audit of this scope.

U.S. Comptroller General Elmer B. Staats recommended the top-to-bottom audit at the urging of Ohio's legislative delegation last fall. But his recommendation to Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., carried some disclaimers. Ribicoff is chairman of the Senate Committee on Government Operations.

"Nevertheless," Staats wrote, "because of our desire to be of assistance to the states in this important area and in view of what we believe that we and the Congress can learn from our participation in a comprehensive review of a single state program, I have concluded that we should respond in a positive manner to Ohio's request."

The GAO has a staff of 11 working here with the assistance of 10 state employees in an attempt to learn how the program might be tightened to provide better service to Ohioans and to save the state and federal governments money.

The audit is three weeks into an expected six-month life with the federal report of the GAO's findings not expected for a year.

Richard Sheridan, director of the legislative budget office which monitors fiscal matters for the General Assembly, disputed earlier claims that the audit is centering on discovery of fraud or abuse.

"That's really peripheral," he said.

"Medicaid costs are not just an Ohio problem. Health care payments are taking a larger and larger share of the gross national product. The GAO may use this audit as a federal prototype for suggestions it will make to other state's with Medicaid problems."

He said the auditors might report that the Ohio program is a model for others to follow, "Although that's unlikely," he said, considering the political storm that brewed all summer and fall between Republican Gov. James A. Rhodes and Democratic legislators.

The tension over the $540-million-a-year program eased somewhat when a Medicaid reform bill passed the legislature last fall. That measure called for the GAO audit.

Sheridan said the GAO staff, led by project manager Tom Dowdal from agency's Washington, D.C. office, is looking at four segments of the Ohio program.

The question of eligibility for the joint state-federal assistance program will be probed. He noted that the thrust of this segment of the study is not to determine solely if there are ineligible recipients on the rolls, but to check the efficiency of the decision-making process.

A second team is checking surveillance, a third claims processing and a fourth the "benefit structure."

Dowdal would not say what the auditors expect to find, claiming "We are not prejudicing ourselves with preconceived notions."

Weather

Cloudy with light snow in the morning tapering off this afternoon with a high in the low 20s. Cloudy and cold tonight with a low of five to 10 degrees. Mostly sunny Saturday and a little warmer with temperatures in the middle 20s. Chances of precipitation, 70 per cent this morning, 30 per cent this afternoon and 20 per cent tonight and Saturday. Thursday's high was 26 with a low of 13 during the night. There is still 11 inches of snow on the ground.

POSTAL AWARD — Gale Creager, right, rural postal carrier at Stoutsville, is presented with a U.S. Postal Service special achievement award and a safe driving award by Stoutsville Postmaster Ralph Fausnaugh. The award is in recognition of the outstanding service Creager has given to customers on his route. He travels 61 miles each day to serve 510 customers. Creager has delivered mail on the same route for nearly 40 years, and has attained a safe driving record for 33 years. He has also accumulated over 2,900 hours of sick leave. "Gale has one of the finest service records in the entire Columbus Postal District," Postmaster Fausnaugh said.

Superintendent Gordon Massie.

However, residents in the district who live near the Fayette County border are DP and L customers.

Massie has heard "nothing official as yet" on the governor's threatened closure of school districts in the state.

Benis Lutz, superintendent of Teays Valley School District, was in Columbus today and unavailable for comment concerning the closing of schools during the current energy crisis.

City Police Charge Two Men With Fraud

Circleville Police have arrested two men and charged them with grand theft by deception following an investigation that lasted nearly a week.

According to Police Sgt. Larry Pontious, the police received word last week that Mrs. Florence Dowden, Rt. 2, was withdrawing large amounts of money from her account at a local bank and giving it to two men.

Thursday morning at approximately 9:45 a.m. Sgt. Pontious received word that Mrs. Dowden was in the bank. He arrived at the bank in time to see Mrs. Dowden leave the building and get into a waiting car with two men.

The trio then proceeded to another bank, where according to Pontious, they attempted to cash a check for $1500. Failing to do so at one bank, they went to another. At that bank, Pontious entered and had bank officials call Mrs. Dowden into the bank.

Upon questioning inside, Mrs. Dowden reportedly told Pontious that one man in the car, later identified as William E. Brown, 49, 108 Starkey Drive, was demanding $2600 from her. He was claiming the money, she said, as a result of alleged injuries he received when a hammer fell from a fuel tank in her home and struck him in the mouth. Pontious stated that at this time it was determined that the demands for the money were made under threats, and that she was to give the money to the men immediately after leaving the bank.

The $1500 check was cashed, and before the money was released, Pontious marked the money and let Mrs. Dowden leave and return to the car.

After leaving the bank, Ptl. James Ford stopped the auto, and upon questioning Mrs. Dowden, she stated that the men had taken the money.

Based on this information, the trio was taken to police headquarters, where Brown and Joseph Ebner, 25, 145 Lowery Lane, were charged with grand theft by deception. Pontious stated that the $1500 in marked money was recovered from Brown's pocket.

Brown and Ebner appeared in Circleville Municipal Court Thursday afternoon for arraignment. Judge O. Charles Hosterman set bond at $2500 apiece. Brown was released after posting 10 per cent of the $2500, and Ebner remains in the Pickaway County Jail. Both men are scheduled to appear in Municipal Court Monday for a preliminary hearing.

In going over Mrs. Dowden's accounts, Pontious stated that it appears that several individuals have defrauded her of several thousand dollars. Mrs. Dowden is 81 years old and resides by herself on her farm.

Pontious stated that a group of 35-40 men in this area are responsible for defrauding elderly people. Law enforcement agencies from Ohio, Indiana, and Michigan have reported successful fraud attempts by these individuals, who pose as home repair specialists.

Circleville Police caution anyone, especially elderly citizens, not to authorize home repairs or improvements without first thoroughly checking out the individuals proposing the work.

Cold Front Brings Snow Flurries

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A cold front moving southward from the Great Lakes is producing snow flurries that reach from upper Michigan to North Carolina.

A travelers' advisory was in effect overnight for the northwest North Carolina mountains because an inch or two of snow was expected to keep roads slippery.

Other precipitation in the nation this morning included widely scattered showers over southern California and rain over the Pacific Northwest.

Unseasonably cold temperatures persisted from the upper Great Lakes across much of nation east of the Mississippi River. The mid-Atlantic and south Atlantic states still were suffering the most from the long cold spell, with temperatures in the 20s and 30s.

But it was cold right down to the Gulf of Mexico.

Temperatures were close to seasonal levels over most of the central and southern plains, but after the bitter cold it seemed like a warm spell.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices turned mixed today after Thursday's steep decline.

After the opening trades, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was about unchanged.

On the New York Stock Exchange, advances and declines ran about equal in the early going.

Trading on the Big Board was brisk.

Brokers pinned Thursday's sharp drop in the Dow on the failure of a rally to take hold. Today, there was little in the news to encourage the market.

Citibank announced this morning that it would leave its prime lending rate unchanged this week at the prevailing rate of 6 1/4 per cent.

On Thursday, the Dow Jones industrial average fell 9.64 to 959.03, a new early-1977 low.

That brought the average's loss since New Year's to 45.62 points.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 9-5 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume reached 26.52 million shares, against 27.12 million on Wednesday.

The NYSE's composite index lost .43 to 55.93.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .42 at 111.

Ohio High Court Issues Rulings

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Supreme Court decided Thursday not to hear the case of a Montgomery County man and wife who were trying to recover damages after a sterilization operation failed and the woman gave birth to twins.

Veda R. Bowman and her husband, Willie, were awarded $462,500 by a court after they sued Dr. Kennon W. Davis, the surgeon who performed the operation. The Supreme Court earlier had upheld that award.

The couple had four children before the surgery which was done because doctors felt another pregnancy might harm Mrs. Bowman, court records show.

The sterilization operation occurred Sept. 24, 1971 and the twins were born prematurely about nine months after the operation.

The Bowmans filed their first suit one year after the operation to comply with the statute of limitations. Two years later a jury made the award.

The current suit was filed in November 1974, and the Bowman's lawyer said it was filed to collect the remainder of the earlier award after Dr. Davis' insurance company said its liability was only $100,000.

The Montgomery County Common Pleas Court ruled against the Bowmans because it said the statute of limitations had run out. The Bowmans took the case to the appellate court and lost again.

They were attempting to collect from Dr. Davis and Dr. Hugh D. Pittman, who practice together. The Bowman's contended that the two

Westfall Sends 13 Students To Festival

The 27th annual High School Music Festival will be conducted at Ohio Wesleyan Jan. 22, with some of Ohio's best high school musicians involved.

A total of 117 high schools from throughout the state will participate. Some 1500 student musicians will be on the OWU campus for the one-day event.

Student participants are chosen on the basis of recommendations from their local music supervisors, and may participate in the Festival Band or Festival Choir. In addition, students who apply with taped auditions may be selected by OWU faculty for the Honors Band or Honors Choir.

Westfall High School is sending 11 vocalists and two instrumentalists to join in the activities. The vocal director is Patricia Bethard and Mark Hosler is the instrumental director.

Vernon Elliott and Bob Rackham are the Westfall instrumentalists chosen to represent the school.

Those vocalists recommended by the director are: Karen Cochran, Teri Meyers, Joy Bidwell, Paula Vincent, Carolyn Rittenhouse, Charnelle Madison, Roy White, Mark Kesler, Teresa Wrightsel, Carla Edmund and Shirley East.

The participants will arrive on campus Saturday morning and spend the day in rehearsals and will also attend a recital given by OWU music students during the day.

At 7 p.m. Saturday evening, the entire group will join for the Festival Concert in Ohio Wesleyan's Gray Chapel. Each of the four groups will perform in the concert.

Dr. Robert Rockabrand, Principia College, Elmhurst, Ill., will be guest conductor for the 90-student Honors Choir. Wayne Gorder, assistant professor in the OWU's music department, will conduct the Honors Band of 65 selected students. Gordon Almstead, also the music faculty, will direct the 1,000-student Festival Chorus.

Man Convicted Of CB Misuse

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — An Indianapolis man convicted of broadcasting indecent language over a citizens band radio was sentenced Thursday to one year in federal prison.

U.S. District Judge William E. Steckler said he believed Lewis L. Simpson, 31, was one of the first persons convicted on such a charge.

A jury ruled Simpson guilty of one charge of using indecent language and six charges of operating a CB radio without a license.

Witnesses testified transmissions by Simpson, who used the handle Sly Fox, were received on televisions, radios and telephones in his neighborhood. He operated the radio at home, officials said.

doctors were practicing in partnership at the time of surgery and that Dr. Pittman is liable also. The doctors argued that they were a corporation and, therefore, that Dr. Pittman was not responsible for damages and furthermore that the statute of limitations had expired.

In other action the court:

—Refused to hear the appeal of Denver Meade who claimed his rights were violated because he was forced to talk to a prosecution psychiatrist before being found guilty in Pickaway County of killing a woman and her son. The high court upheld two lower courts who found him guilty of murdering Charlotte Van Sickle and her son, Douglas, on Jan. 20, 1973.

—Refused to hear a drunk driving case involving technical arguments over whether the defendant was actually driving when arrested. Adrian Holloway Jr. of Freeport was arrested for driving while intoxicated early on Oct. 18, 1975 near Coshocton. He admitted drinking eight beers before the arrest but said he had done that after his car's transmission failed and he had pulled to the berm. The arresting officer said Holloway's car was running and that he was moving the gearshift. The officer also said that action caused the car to move an inch or two. A lower court found Holloway guilty and the appellate court agreed.

—Refused the appeal of Gordon L. Jenkins who sought damages from the state after beavers it imported to Zaleski State Park in the 1950s built dams on his adjacent 50 acres and turned it into a marsh.

Jenkins claimed the beavers caused the market value of his land to drop by $30,000. Two lower courts ruled the state was not liable for the damages.

Agency Advisory Council Meets

The Advisory Council of Central Ohio Area Agency which consists of 8 counties — Madison, Franklin, Delaware, Union, Pickaway, Fairfield, Fayette and Licking — met in the Area Agency office facilities at the Sunshine Terrace, Senior Citizens housing high rise complex in Columbus.

The 1977-78 Budget was received and accepted to be submitted to the Ohio Commission on Aging for all 8 counties. The Pickaway County Senior Citizens programs are sponsored by the Pickaway County Commissioners. The money allocated from Title III is $36,000 to be used for the Center and Supportive Service and Home Nursing programs.

Transportation is one of the criteria discussed.

Joan Byrne, Special Project personnel for Central Ohio Area Agency on Aging, reported the Hall of Fame will be held May 11. Senior Citizens Month is May and Senior Citizen Day is May 17th.

There will be a Senior Citizens Art Show and auction by Governor James Rhodes at the Statehouse Rotunda on March 7 thru 13. On March 9 at 12 noon, the Governor will auction the jurors pictures. The persons entering the Art Show must be 60 years of age and forms to enter can be picked up at the Center.

Delegates attending locally were Don Strous, Commissioner; Vera Saunders and Mary Clark. Alternate delegate was Pauline Jones and Wanda Hamilton was a guest.

shortages appeared earlier in the week to have eased a bit, later reports and the continued cold weather caused new concerns. He said he now understands East Ohio Gas Co., Ohio's second largest supplier, appears to face greater cutbacks than at first anticipated.

East Ohio only has had to impose a 10 per cent curtailment on its industrial users, while DP&L and Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc., have shut off supplies to all boilers and drastically reduced (up to 50 per cent)

If you want to keep water at your house, you must keep water running through your lines, according to Chuck Taylor, Public Utilities Director for the City of Circleville

"We've got serious problems," he said, in keeping water service in the city

As of 10 a.m. today, his department has received reports of 231 frozen service lines . . . And department personnel have been averaging 16 hours a day working to thaw the lines, but "are not gaining a thing . . ."

The amount of water needed to constantly flow through the water lines to keep them from freezing is very little, he said, and its cost will be much smaller than the cost of replacing water lines . . .

The frost line has been reported as deep as 36 inches in some parts of the county.

Cold Deaths Reported

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Recent bitterly cold temperatures apparently caused the deaths of at least three elderly Ohioans.

In Cincinnati, police said an George Melber, 72, appeared to have frozen to death in his downtown apartment in which the only heat was provided by two sunlamps wired to the bathroom ceiling.

The Summit County coroner's office has tentatively ruled that over exposure caused the death of Dora Jackson, 79, whose body was found in her unheated Twinsburg Heights room. Police said a kerosene heater in the room was inoperative.

The death of 77-year-old Thomas Daley in Vermilion was attributed in part to the subzero weather. The Lorain County coroner's office said Daley, whose body was found in his backyard covered with snow, suffered a heart attack which was contributed to by the extreme cold.

Foundation Criticism

Henry Ford II certainly started some soul searching among foundations by resigning from the board of the Ford Foundation amid criticisms that the foundation does not demonstrate sufficient appreciation for the free enterprise system which provides its funding.

This is a criticism which has been leveled before by business leaders against foundations in general, but the Ford protest is one of the most dramatic complaints to date. For the first time since Ford's grandfather founded the foundation which has become the nation's largest, no member of the Ford family now serves on its board.

Many of the comments from officials of various foundations concerning Ford's criticism expressed confusion over his meaning, but one was somewhat more revealing. From an official of the Council on Foundations came the admission that many of the automaker's complaints had been heard before, but that the main complaint heard from foundation officials and not mentioned by Ford was that too many foundations were "of, by and for the establishment and reflect mostly the viewpoint of those who produce the money."

Comments like that only corroborate Ford's complaint.

James Earl Ray

By JIM BISHOP

Shock waves slammed through the cell blocks in Jefferson City. The President had been assassinated. A convict said, "Somebody made a million." Another said, "The man who murders King will make another million." A prisoner recalls James Earl Ray saying, "That's the million I want to collect."

His escape-of-the-week plan worked on April 23, 1967. He hid in a bread basket and was driven through the gates. His Social Security card listed him as "John L. Raynes." The warden offered $50 for his capture.

The Smiler washed dishes, bought cheap cars, drove from city to city. He held up a store in Montreal and got $1,700. He changed his name again: Eric S. Galt. He courted a divorcee and began to spend more money than he had ever accumulated.

He told her he had a sponsor named Raoul. Raoul told him his next move would be to a rooming house at 2608 Highland Ave., Birmingham, Alabama. He did not know Raoul's last name, but he had a lot of cash and spent considerable time in Canadian travel agencies finding out how to leave Canada for a country like Rhodesia.

It seems obvious that someone acquainted with his prison background (13 years out of 39 behind bars) had offered Ray his "one big lick," the opportunity to kill Dr. Martin Luther King. From his point on, he accepted direction and money. It also seems fairly obvious that "Raoul" represented someone in Birmingham, or perhaps a group of whites, willing to pay a third-rate criminal to kill King.

He left prison with $300. He earned $670 at the Indian Trail Restaurant in Chicago. The holdup netted $1,700 — total $2,670. He bought a white Mustang for $1,995, rented a safe deposit box at the Birmingham Trust Bank, had $2,000 in a savings account, and paid for food, lodging and prostitutes.

James Earl Ray drove to Los Angeles, paid cash for nose surgery, took a course in bartending (he would need a job in Rhodesia), and drove Charles Stein and his sister Rita to New Orleans to "have some fun" and to "meet my boss."

Raoul told him "the job" had to be postponed for two months. He was ordered to return to Los Angeles and move into the St. Francis Hotel. James Earl Ray rejoined the Steins with $2,500 in Ray bills. Raoul had invested $8,500 in Ray. He later said he was promised $12,000 more and a passport to Rhodesia where, he was told, the whites rule the blacks.

In the middle of March, 1968, the Smiler received orders to pack and drive to New Orleans. He arrived on March 20th, and read a message to drive to the Starlite Motel in Birmingham. Dr. King was crosstown at the Gaston Motel. Two paths began to converge.

The chase was awkward. James Earl Ray drove his white Mustang mercilessly, but he was two days late to catch his man in Mississippi; a day and a half late for a speech in Camden, Alabama, and two days late for a rally in Birmingham.

He drove to Atlanta with his boss. He bought a street map. Carefully he circled the home of Dr. King, a parking lot, the headquarters of the Southern Christian Leadership group, and the Ebenezer Baptist Church. He spent a week finding the places, and studying the roads.

The boss had new orders. The map was discarded. On March 31st, the two drove to Birmingham. They found a listing in the Yellow Pages for the Aeromarine Supply Company. When Dr. King flew from Atlanta to Memphis, he could see the big gun shop off the edge of the Birmingham Airport.

Aeromarine sold anything a sportsman might desire. The Smiler found U.L. Baker behind a counter. He would like - well, he would like a rifle. What for? Hunting. Deer, perhaps. Ray said he would hunt up around the Sand Mountains or Arkadelphia. Donald Wood, son of the shop owner, wasn't busy. He listened.

So did John De Shazo, a customer. Each felt that the Smiler knew little about rifles. He hefted many. At last he settled on a Remington 700, calibre .243 Winchester. He ordered 20 rounds of ammunition. It wouldn't last for more than two hours of hunting.

Oh, yes, he wanted a 2-by-7 scope mounted. His name, he said, was Harvey Lowmeyer. The gun cost $134.95; the scope $74.60; the metal base for the scope $20.32; cartridges $4.65. Total with tax: $248.59. His fingerprints were on every rifle he touched.

He was gone 90 minutes when Ray phoned in some panic. He had bought the wrong gun. Could he exchange it in the morning? This time - magically - he knew exactly what he wanted - a Remington 760; 30.06 calibre. This one could stop an elephant...

PUCO Hearing Set On Oil-Gas Shuffle

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Public Utilities Commission of Ohio (PUCO) hearing on Wednesday will determine whether Columbia Gas of Ohio can substitute costly fuel oil for natural gas to some industrial users then sell the natural gas at a higher price to industries unable to use fuel oil.

The company asked PUCO on Tuesday for immediate approval of its plan to automatically pass on the cost of about 7 billion cubic feet (bcf) of gas to customers who need emergency supplies of natural gas.

A PUCO spokesman said the request will be considered by PUCO on Wednesday unless a special commission meeting is called.

Columbia Gas said that by obtaining the rights to the undelivered gas from those industries capable of burning fuel oil, the company would be able to deliver emergency gas to schools and other curtailed customers, as well as to high priority industries.

"We have a lot of irons in the fire and we anticipate being able to get some gas," said Bill Chaddock, the Columbia Gas spokesman. "But none of it is locked up solid at this point."

Chaddock said Columbia Gas has "tentative commitments" from several cooperating industries in Ohio. He declined to identify the companies because "every other gas company in the country is trying to do the same thing."

Chaddock said Columbia would have to pay the industries for the higher cost of burning fuel oil rather than gas, or $3.25 per thousand cubic feet. The additional cost for the natural gas to the industrial customers would be five to 11 cents per thousand cubic feet. Residential rates would not be affected, he said.

Meanwhile, the company's pipeline affiliate announced the purchase of Canadian gas. The gas increases supplies being stored to meet peak demands in the event there are other severely cold days like Ohio experienced this week.

In Charleston, W. Va., Columbia Gas Transmission Inc., the pipeline that serves Columbia Gas, said the Federal Power Commission approved Tuesday the purchase of 15 bcf of gas from TransCanada Pipeline Ltd. Delivery of approximately 250 million cubic feet per day was scheduled to begin Wednesday.

The purchase will not be used to relieve day-to-day shortages experienced by customers, said Tom Ryan, spokesman for the transmission corporation.

"What we're trying to do through these purchases is offset the storage deficiencies that existed prior to Nov. 1," Ryan said.

Because the last half of October was 91 per cent colder than normal, the amount of gas the transmission corporation needed for storage to begin the five-month heating season Nov. 1 was 25 bcf low, Ryan said.

The Canadian purchase will restore some of that reserve capacity, which is used to meet peak demand days throughout the pipelines seven-state system, Ryan said.

Set Phone Expansion

MARION, Ohio (AP) — General Telephone Co. of Ohio announced plans Wednesday to spend $68 million to expand and improve its statewide facilities.

Robert M. Wopat, president of the Marion-based company, said about 4,000 requests for reduced party lines will be fulfilled by expanding cable networks and facilities for call transmitting and switching.

Plans also call for the construction of about 2,700 sheathmiles of new cable statewide, with about 75 per cent underground, Wopat said.

New switching systems are being installed in five communities and pushbutton services will be offered to 37 additional cities, he said. Fourteen exchanges are now equipped for push-button dialing, he said.

Plans for a building to house the company's new training center in Marion will also be finalized during 1977, Wopat said.

General Telephone serves about 510,000 customers through 243 exchanges in parts of 80 Ohio counties.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I am bald. I've been through the massage routine. I've tried hormones, mail-order "miracles," ointments. Now I'm thinking of hair transplants or hair implants. Before I get started, can you give me the real low-down on these processes?

Mr. H. L., III.

Dear Mr. L.:
Let's start with hair implantation. This differs from hair transplantation.

With implantation, metal clips are sewn into the scalp and remain there. Hair pieces are then attached to the scalp and are kept in place by means of these clips. Many techniques have been developed for hair implantation, but the process is still far from perfect.

The clips may act as a foreign body. Redness and swelling around the clip may occur. Infections are not unusual. The advantages of this method are not great enough to overcome its disadvantages. Constant manipulation of the hair by washing, shampooing and combing further adds to the irritation of the scalp.

I would avoid this.
Hair transplantation is a method by which tiny clumps of hair, with the underlying skin, are removed from an area of the scalp that still flourishes. This is known as a "donor graft." This graft is then inserted into the bald area which has been prepared and made ready to receive the graft.

Since it is possible to transplant only small segments of skin and hair, numerous grafting procedures are necessary.

The number of transplants that are needed is dependent on the area of baldness. Sometimes more than one hundred transplants are necessary to complete the procedure.

This is an arduous, time-consuming technique. Not all people are ideal candidates for it. Before getting started on hair transplantation, the opinion of a specialist in this field is most important.

Such specialists do not indiscriminately recommend transplants. They suggest it only for those people to whom they can offer the greatest degree of hope for successful results.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the oddest things about so-called tax-exempt municipal bond funds, the latest securities industry package aimed at the relatively small investor, is that they are sometimes taxed.

True, dividend earnings are not subject to federal income taxes, but capital gains resulting from increases in a fund's net asset value are taxed. Even the dividends might be taxed by state or city governments.

In addition, some funds for defensive purposes during bad markets might purchase U.S. Treasury bills. Income earned from these investments also will be taxed federally, and maybe at state and local levels also.

While such taxes are minor when matched against the federal tax exemption on dividends, there are other peculiarities of these mutual funds that are causing some concern among securities people.

To cite one concern, there is the question of whether fund managers can effectively trade in and out of municipal bonds and obtain a better dividend return than would be obtained by leaving the portfolio dormant.

The municipal bond funds, unlike unit trusts that invest in long-term municipal bonds and hold them to maturity, trade frequently in a constant quest for the highest possible yield.

Nevertheless, Standard & Poor's Corp., which rates municipal bonds, now measures a considerably higher yield for unit trusts, whose portfolios are unmanaged, than for the bond funds, which advertise professional management.

Brenton Harries, president of S&P, observes that the bond market is very much unlike the stock market.

"In stocks, company A goes up and B goes down, and so on. It's a regular cycle. But in bonds, A and B move together in response to Federal Reserve policy," said Harries.

Because of this, he continued, you can hardly expect in the bond market the same random assortment of rising and falling issues as in stocks, which react to the myriad, diverse pressures that affect them individually. "Bonds move up and down like a big wave. All react the same way."

Harries worries about what might ensue if interest rates rise, making the return higher on newly issued bonds and encouraging the funds to dispose of older issues.

Who will buy them, he asks? "When selling pressure is on these funds might find themselves illiquid," or unable to sell, he said. This is especially true, he feels, because mutual funds "follow the leader," matching each other's strategies.

Townsend Brown II, a director and vice president of Struthers & Winthrop Management Corp., feels the munifunds, as they are often called, are being pegged to little investors who can least benefit from tax exemptions.

Such people, he said, may be encouraged into investing money they can ill afford to lose. "I do not believe bond money should be horsetrack money," he stated. "You just don't buy bonds for performance and speculation."

Brown and others also are critical of the pricing practices of the funds. For some fund holdings, there are few transactions and sometimes no published figures of market place activity. In such instances, a bond's daily value is determined by an informed opinion.

But, says Brown, some of these values might be set much higher than could be obtained on the market if the fund were forced to sell. He believes the fund might not get nearly the price at which the bonds are carried on the books.

Other critics fear that when competition becomes intense the funds might be forced into buying riskier, but higher yielding bonds. The riskier a bond is, the higher return it must pay to those who buy it.

Some critics also speculate that because of the enormous buying power of the funds, more and more issues of questionable pay-back ability might flood the market — issues that might have found few buyers ago.

But, say the defenders of munifunds, there are always questions about something new, and there are always doubters. In any investment, they say, one must assume risks in order to earn the rewards.

Nobody can deny that these funds are capable of lowering the taxes a person otherwise might pay, they say, and nobody can deny either that with more people moving into higher tax brackets, a tax break is a very real attraction.

Federal Aid Anniversary

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal-Aid Highway System celebrated its 60th anniversary in 1976. The first project, according to The Road Information Program (TRIP), was a two-and-a-half-mile road built in southern California in 1916.

Today the system covers more than 993,000 miles, including 37,717 miles of interstates open to traffic, 263,437 miles of primary roads, 631,928 miles of secondary roads and 60,418 miles of urban roads and streets.

The winter of '77 will be a number one conversation topic for some time to come. We all are fast having experiences unlike any other which makes for interesting relating to others.

Our daughter Amy is trying to figure out a way to preserve the four foot two inch icicle she got from a neighbor's home. She is fascinated by the size of it since she isn't all that much taller than it is.

Marvie baby and Dolly Thompson and family members Shirley, Vicki and Brad have welcomed Bente Lund of Nordborg, Denmark into their home for the next few months. Bente is here on the Youth For Understanding exchange student program. She is 17-years-old and will study at Westfall High School. She speaks German, English and her native Danish fluently and is familiar with the French and Spanish languages. The weather we are presently having is no stranger to her as it is to most of our South American students who arrive here during the winter months. We cordially welcome Bente to our community and wish her happy days while in the USA.

Alaska Set For Home Tax Sharing

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — As Alaska's huge oil reserves are tapped and taxed, much of the state's profit would go right into its people's pockets under a proposal that Gov. Jay Hammond calls the "ultimate in grassroots revenue sharing."

Hammond's plan, announced Wednesday, would establish an investment fund called Alaska, Inc. Every adult who has lived in the state for five years — about a fourth of the state's 400,000 residents — would receive a share. People over 65 would get two shares. For every five years they spend in the state in the future, Alaskans would pick up another share.

With the trans-Alaska pipeline scheduled to open in July, state income from oil and gas taxes and royalties is expected to total $420 million by the end of 1977 and more than $1 billion a year by 1980.

The governor estimated that dividends on each share would be $57 the first year and $460 by 1985.

Hammond said he's pushing the plan because he's upset over the mushrooming growth of Alaska's state government during the oil boom.

"Rather than permitting government to spend all public monies earned through exploitation of the public's resources for what government thinks best," Hammond said, "let's grant shares to Alaskans and let them determine what services they want enough to permit government to recoup those shares in taxes."

"Nothing could do more to curb excessive growth of government."

Hammond, a Republican, said the scheme should be attractive to fiscal conservatives, because it limits the growth of government, and to liberals because it will help the poor.

Indira Gandhi Lifts Restraints

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government, relaxing the 19-month-old state of emergency to prepare for parliamentary elections, lifted press censorship today and ordered the mass release of political prisoners.

Four non-Communist opposition parties, meanwhile, buried their political differences to form a united front against Mrs. Gandhi's Congress party in the elections, to be held in March.

"We hope to win a thumping majority, not just a small majority," former Deputy Prime Minister Morarji Desai said as he announced the formation of the new Janta — People's — party.

that is even better. So it was for Donna Stauffer Thompson when her mother Esther Picklesimer and Charley entertained in her honor Tuesday evening. A part of the fun plot were Shirley and Helen Stant of Whisler, Paul and Jean Thompson, Gary and Linda Thompson all of near Fox, Mike Stauffer, Bessie Miller, Faith Ann "Lollipop" Picklesimer of our town, Jack Branham of Chillicothe, Donna's hubby Brad and their images Marcy and Jess. Unable to attend but sending best wishes and gifts were Chip and Jan Morgan and little Krista of Circleville.

We were distressed to learn that Esther will need to be hospitalized in the very near future. Arrangements are being made for her to enter Mt. Carmel.

Margaret Steinhauser Fulton is a patient at Holy Cross Hospital, East Commercial Blvd., Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. Peggy underwent open heart surgery last Saturday and word was received by her brother and sister-in-law Gene and Glenna Steinhauser Monday evening that she was doing well as could be expected. Cards would be a source of cheer and comfort to Peggy.

Another surgical patient is Ron E. Bush who is a patient at Berger Hospital. He underwent surgery Wednesday. Ron is the very active chairman of our local Deercreek Dam Days Festival. He is our "Mr. Festival". Don't forget to remember him with lots of cards.

It hardly seems possible that a year has gone by so swift but proof of the pudding is in the fact that plans are afoot for the 1977 Heart Fund Drive to be held in February. Yours truly will be serving as chairman of our village and Deercreek Township for the 16th year. The youth of our community will be called upon to serve as the capable volunteers they have always been in past years. In going over previous volunteer lists I find that many of those who began as fifth and sixth graders are now licensed drivers which seems incredible. But then again, many of our former volunteers are now "fully growned" adults, too.

Jan Long and Nancy Schein returned to classes at Miami University this week. They were driven to Oxford by Nancy's father Paul Schein. Miami did not break for holiday vacation until a day or so before Christmas thus the girls were home longer in January while most of the other "college kids" were back in class.

I want to take this moment to caution all drivers to be extremely careful while driving on our streets because the recent weather conditions have left them hazardous to travel. And be ever so careful during the hours when school children are waiting to board a bus or coming home from school. The early morning hours when it is still rather dark and the streets so icy and the boys and girls unaware of how difficult it is to keep a car under control makes for a potentially dangerous combination. The youngsters crowd out into the street while waiting for the bus which is not a healthy practice because if a car should go into a slide someone could be injured seriously. Perhaps all parents should caution their children to stand well back until the bus has approached and stopped. The situation gives me deep concern as I am sure it would and does to anyone who has observed the circumstances.

Mrs. Earl (Flo) Baker, a long time resident of our community, moved last Thursday to Lima where she will be living in an apartment complex and will be near her daughter and son-in-law Jean and Rev. Clyde Miller and other family members. Mrs. Miller gave me Mrs. Baker's new address but the gremlins that misplace things have been at work in our household and for the time being I am unable to locate the address, however, it shall be found eventually and then we will pass it on to our interested readers.

Be with you again next week, the Lord willing. Take care. Think About: That day is lost on which one has not laughed.

Urge Voice For Farmers On Exports

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department study says the longterm grain deal with the Soviet Union was "a good solution" to a ticklish trade problem but that farmers should have had a voice in the decisions.

The agreement was signed Oct. 20, 1975, and calls for the Soviet Union to buy six million to eight million metric tons of U.S. corn and wheat annually over five years. Deliveries began last Oct. 1.

In a report released Tuesday, the department's so-called Young Executives Committee said the agreement with Russia was precipitated by "sizeable, erratic Soviet grain purchases" in the summer of 1975.

"The climate was right for dominate personalities with special interests to have a disproportionate effect on the decision," said the report. It said some government officials who should have taken part were not involved and, as a result, the agreement was "unnecessarily delayed."

Despite the snarls at the time, the new grain agreement "has helped remove a source of public dissension" over U.S. food supplies, the committee said.

"Whether or not the agreement eventually evens out Soviet purchases as it is designed to do, it has had the short-term effect of calming public fears about food shortages," the committee said.

Rhodes Nixes Celeste Offer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes turned down Wednesday the offer of Lt. Gov. Richard F. Celeste to become an Ohio liaison in Washington with the new Carter Administration.

Rhodes had his executive assistant, Thomas J. Moyer, write the Democratic officeholder to say the Republican governor feels the state's congressional delegation will be sufficient.

In addition, Moyer's letter noted that Rhodes has been successful in the past in dealing with presidents of both political parties.

Celeste's offer last week suggested a bipartisan Ohio attempt might better get Carter's ear, but stopped short of noting that the lieutenant governor's brother, Ted, was a Carter campaign official.

In his reply to Celeste, Rhodes said through Moyer he hopes and expects that Carter "will be more influenced by the merits of the issue ... than the political party of the governor."

Rhodes did say he might want to use Celeste's services on "special projects from time to time."

Van Mania Still Shows Strength

WATSONVILLE, Calif. (AP) — The long line of vans banks down onto the freeway like a giant, rainbow-hued centipede.

Riding lead in his "Plain Brown Wrapper," 26-year-old Ken Brown keeps his left hand on the wheel and his right on the CB radio. He pushes his box-like truck into the light Sunday afternoon traffic.

Overhead, the last of the 14-van caravan is on the overpass, rolling toward the freeway. A giggling voice crackles out of the CB.

"All right, man! This is great. We look like a giant worm!"

The vanners are members of Central Coast Rollin' Rooms, one of 48 van clubs heading for home after a giant truck-in. Over 500 vans were at the Santa Cruz County Fairgrounds for a weekend of beer, rock music and competition among clubs.

More than anything else, they had come to celebrate the latest craze on four wheels: the van.

Originally designed for commercial use, the one-time workhorse of plumbers and flower shops has become the idol of an entire van culture and the darling of Detroit auto makers.

The three U.S. manufacturers — Ford, Chrysler and General Motors — say they don't know the limits of the market. It caught fire in the late '60s, a decade after vans were first produced in this country.

Likewise, owners haven't found limits on ways their vehicles can be modified. Vans have evolved from delivery trucks into media for artistic expression, raw pieces of machinery to be modified to the exotic tastes of their owners.

Outside, they are dolled up with zany paint jobs, complete with garish murals and elaborately scrolled names like "Van-detta" and "Van-Go." Inside, it's fur carpets, waterbeds, refrigerators — enough extras to approximate an appliance store and French boudoir.

"It's an identity thing," Brown said as he guided his group down the coast toward Lompoc, where he works at a chemical factory.

"When I did mine I was just looking to make it unique. It gets so that everyone can sort of put you together with your truck," he said. "So, when I pull into a truck-in they maybe can't see me but they know I'm there because of my truck."

Brown said he paid about $4,000 for his van in 1973. Since then, he's doubled that.

Pat Mackie, editor of Custom Vans magazine, said the average vanner will spend about $4,000 to $5,000 on modifications.

"But it's not unusual to see one that has had $20,000 put into it," he said. Many vanners, he said, are young ex-servicemen.

"To some extent," Mackie said, "they are rebelling against the discipline they had while in the forces. They're saying: 'I don't care what you think of my van.' They are rebelling against Detroit paint, Detroit metal, Detroit wheels."

Said Brian Holmes, president of the National Association of Van Owners: "It all goes back to the American Dream of making your own one-of-a-kind vehicle. The next step is if you have something so different, really neat, then you want to compete with it."

Miss Kelley Marie Jones Mr. Jon Barth Jacobs Wed

MR. AND MRS. JON BARTH JACOBS

Miss Kelley Marie Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Richard Jones, 1975 Sioux Drive and Mr. Jon Barth Jacobs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Jacobs, 603 S. Court St., were united in marriage December 31, at the Northridge Church of Christ.

The Rev. Leonard Tippie, officiated at the double ring ceremony. The altar held two single yellow candles and a large white unity candle. The altar was flanked by seven branch candelabra with yellow tapers, baskets containing yellow and white standards and roses. A yellow and white mum arrangement adorned the piano. Candle arrangements of yellow and white were placed in each window of the church. Pews were marked with greenery and yellow velvet bows.

Prior to the service James and Brent Jacobs lighted the candles for the wedding service.

A program of nuptial music preceded the ceremony. Janet West served as pianist and Steven Jones entertained with guitar music.

Miss Jones was escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her father and mother. For her wedding she chose a Queen Elizabeth style dress of ivory satin with rose lace neckline and cummerbund. Satin buttons trimmed the deep cuffs on the sleeves. Her cap and veil was of medallion rose lace with scalloped trim and ribbon edging the top and bottom. The bride fashioned and made her own gown along with the cap and train of lace. She carried a colonial bouquet of white sweetheart roses with white ribbon streamers. Her jewelry was a triple strand of white beads, a gift of her grandmother and white earrings.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Steven Roush, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Miss Jane Henry, Miss Beth Taylor, Mrs. Wesley Jones and Miss Janet Jacobs, sister of the bridegroom. The honor attendant and bridesmaids wore identical formal length gowns of mocha brown qiana trimmed in light ecru lace. The long full sleeves were gathered to deep cuffs of the lace. They wore pearl necklaces and earrings, gifts from the bride. All of the attendants carried hurricane lamps with roses around the base.

Mr. Darrell McCoy Jr., performed the duties of best man. Ushers were

Mr. Jeffrey Jacobs and Mr. James Jacobs, brothers of the bridegroom and Mr. Brent Jacobs and Mr. Dennis Brooks.

The bride's mother was attired in a qiana formal length apricot gown which featured a scoop neckline and long sleeves ending in ruffles at the wrist. Her corsage was of white roses.

The bridegroom's mother chose a bright green qiana formal length gown trimmed at the bodice with rhinestone clips and featured long full sheer sleeves. Her corsage was of yellow rose buds.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the church Fellowship Center. The three tiered wedding cake baked by Mrs. Henry Bartholmew, aunt of the bride, was topped with two white doves and decorated in shades of yellow and green. Yellow roses and greenery encircled the cake and punch bowl to complete the decorations.

Hostesses were Mrs. Darrell McCoy Jr., Miss Twana Brooks, Miss Dawnell Bergen, Miss Tamara Jacobs presided at the guest book.

The bride is a 1976 graduate of Circleville High School and is currently serving with the U.S. Army, Goodfellow Air Force Base.

The bridegroom is a 1975 graduate of Circleville High School, and is currently employed by the Angelo Feed and Supply Company.

Special guests at the wedding were Mrs. Herbert Shadley, grandmother of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Jacobs Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Kern, grandparents of the bridegroom.

The couple are currently residing in San Angelo, Texas.

Following the rehearsal, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jacobs were hosts for a dinner for the wedding party and guests at the Pickaway Arms Restaurant.

Prior to the wedding Miss Jones was honored at a bridal shower given by Mrs. Herbert Hammel and her daughter Mrs. James Beathard Jr. at the home of Mrs. Hammel, 531 S. Court St.

LUNCH FOR FRIENDS

Seafood salad, rolls, frosted cupcakes with candied pineapple, tea or coffee.

Candied Pineapple

A reader's request.

1 pound, 14-ounce can pineapple slices in heavy syrup
2 cups sugar

1/2 cup light corn syrup

Thoroughly drain pineapple. In a large deep skillet over medium heat, stirring constantly, cook the pineapple syrup, sugar and corn syrup to 234 degrees on a candy thermometer. Add half the pineapple slices in a single layer; bring to a full boil; simmer for about 15 minutes; turn slices and continue simmering until transparent around edges — 15 to 20 minutes longer. Remove slices to wire rack, placed over wax paper, to drain. Cook and drain the remaining slices the same way. Let dry on racks, uncovered, at room temperature for 24 hours. Store candied slices in the refrigerator. Cut in small fan-shape wedges and use as a garnish for frosted cupcakes or as an ingredient in fruitcakes. (Do what you will with the left-over syrup!)

Kids Clutter Up Major CB Channel

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Teddybear's a racketjaw, and somebody's liable to get killed because of it.

From 3:30 in the afternoon until the more entertaining television programs come on, Citizens Band Channel 7 crackles with chit-chat about homework, teachers, who has a crush on whom—the myriad fascinating bits of children's gossip that used to tie up the family telephone.

Now the gossip ties up the CB channel adopted as an emergency frequency by hunters and fishermen in Louisiana marshes and inland waters of the Gulf of Mexico.

"These Teddybears are real racketjaws," said Tom Burke, lapsing into CB jargon. "Racketjaw" is the way CBers describe anyone who monopolizes the air waves. A "Teddybear," since the sentimental countrywestern song with that title, refers to children at the microphone.

Burke doesn't think they're cute. He's a member of the Louisiana chapter of the Long Beach Air-Marine Rescue Unit, which monitors the emergency channel.

"We have two or three trouble calls a day—more when shrimping season is booming," he said.

"We had a fisherman this week who got in trouble and called till his batteries ran down. Nobody could hear him because of all the chatter on Channel 7.

"I don't blame the kids. It's the adults who buy the CBs and put them in the kids' rooms.

"But no matter who's to blame, somebody's liable to get killed out there because they can't get help.

"The kids here seem to have hit on Channel 7 for their gossip line, because a lot of them have fathers who are fishermen or hunters. The family base station is always on that channel. It's their own fathers they're liable to kill."

The situation is made even worse by the thousands of walkie-talkies sold as Christmas toys, Burke said.

"There's nothing inside them, so they bleed all over all 23 channels. From Christmas to the end of January, it's impossible. I just turn my radio off," he said.

"The walkie-talkies last about a month, then it's okay again. Drop them a couple of times, and they break."

He switched on his base set. After a minute or so of silence, a childish voice shouted, "Can you hear me?" Another child's voice responded, "I can hear you good — loud and clear. Can you hear me?"

The walkie-talkie conversation between the two children continued, audible on every channel as Burke twisted the dial on his set.

"They're cheaply engineered so they can keep the cost down and sell them as toys," Burke explained. "They're supposed to broadcast on one channel — Channel 14, for instance — but they're not precise, and you can hear them all over the dial when they're close to you."

Officer Nails 'Gestapo Squad'

NEW YORK (AP) — Three members of the Savage Skulls "Gestapo squad" pleaded guilty to a brutal assault on a young woman after a detective spent his own time and money to bring the victim back from Puerto Rico.

Before Detective Robert Werner persuaded the still-disfigured 20-year-old woman to return to testify against the gang members, there seemed little hope that Monserrat "The Rat" Irrizary, 21, Melvin Nunez, 21, and Jorge Pierna, 19, would pay for their vicious attack.

But when the trio saw the woman enter a court hearing, Werner said, there was a quick huddle between their attorney and a representative of Bronx Dist. Atty. Mario Merola's office. The guilty pleas followed.

Their admissions of second-degree assault, reduced from the original charge of first-degree assault, could send them to prison for six years, Merola said.

Little-Known Incident Powerful Film

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It is a very positive film, and I hope it will be well received, particularly by the younger generation. It is important for them to learn what the Nazis did to the Jews."

Vienna-born Oskar Werner was here to talk about the new movie, "Voyage of the Damned," in which he and a clutch of stars portray a little-known episode of Nazi Germany. Nine hundred Jews were allowed to leave Germany on an ocean liner only to be trapped on the high seas when no nation would accept them.

The cast of the Avco Embassy release includes Faye Dunaway, Max Von Sydow, Orson Welles, James Mason, Ben Gazzara, Malcolm McDowell, Lee Grant and Katharine Ross. None could feel the impact of the film's theme as intimately as Oskar Werner.

"I lived under the Nazis in Austria from 1938 to 1945," he remarked. "I saw a very distinguished writer being forced to wash a sidewalk because he was a Jew. I saw the books burning in the street. The big lorries arrived with the books, and I saw what they were — books by Stefan Zweig, Franz Werfel, Freud, Einstein, and Thomas Mann, who wasn't a Jew but had spoken out against the Nazis.

"People in Germany claimed they were not aware of what the Nazis were doing to the Jews. Lies. We all knew about the concentration camps, although we couldn't know all the atrocities that went on. I myself spent four months in a work camp, and it was the most miserable experience of my life. I welcomed being forced into the army, where I was a very poor soldier.

"So you can see that 'Voyage of the Damned' evokes great emotions. Will the young generation be intrigued enough by the theme to come to the theaters? I hope so."

The answer will be known in February, when the film is released nationally. The early opening in New York has produced excellent results, in Los Angeles less so.

This was Werner's first visit to Hollywood since he appeared in a "Columbo" two years ago. His only other filmmaking experience here was "Ship of Fools" in 1965. He has made surprisingly few movies anywhere — a mere 20 in almost 30 years.

"During my career I have rejected more than 300 scripts," explained the actor, a youthful 54. "I'm an old-fashioned man, I suppose. I simply won't appear in pornography or films of violence. I believe in what Kant asked of art: that it be the manifestation of the sublime and the beautiful.

"I have been spoiled by the theater. When I can't find films that seem worth doing, I can always do things that are worthwhile in the theater. I have done four productions of 'Hamlet.' Later I have been touring with recitals, filling the Vienna theater that is like your Carnegie Hall, with 2,500 people. I read poetry that is familiar to them; my surprise is in how I tell it.

"I have often said I am married to the theater. Film is my mistress."

Fawcett-Majors Posters Booming

MEDINA, Ohio (AP) — Mike Trikilis has this hang up with Farrah Fawcett-Majors.

He sells millions of posters of the television starlet to people who might have the same hang up.

The posters are so popular that his Medina-based Pro Arts Inc., has recently printed nothing but Farrah posters—14 hours a day, six days a week.

A poster maker and distributor lives and dies by the day's trends. First it was peace posters, then it was rock groups and zodiacs, then it was "the Fonz."

Now it's Farrah who's giving Betty Grable a run for the title of being the most popular pinup girl ever.

Pro Arts is making a bundle nowadays because it has the exclusive rights to print Farrah's poster. The picture shows her in a one piece bathing suit with little cleavage showing but with plenty of her luxuriant hair and her big smile.

"We've sold more than 2 million of these posters since September and there seems to be no let up," Trikilis, the firm's president, said. "It's not revealing. She's not nude. I don't know what it is...She's got this free spirited and yet wholesome quality. Not just a sex symbol."

The 35-year-old Trikilis groped to account for the poster's popularity. "She's like the girl next door, your sister and your girl friend all in one. She's my favorite girl."

Trikilis' adoration for Ms. Fawcett-Majors is most glowingly reflected in the bottom line of his record books. His company puts out about 200 different posters. The Farrah posters accounted for about one third of the $5 million business the firm did last year.

"I have no idea how far this is going to go," he said, "but we have plans to bring out an even bigger poster than the 20-by-28 inch color one we have now of her."

Trikilis said he and his brother Ted began their business in 1967 selling art supplies in Wooster. They gave up on art supplies when, on moving to Kent, they discovered that posters were a hot-selling item. Pro Arts was incorporated in 1969 in Medina.

With the success of the Farrah poster, the firm and its officers have been basking in attention. "We get maybe 50 letters a week about the poster. It's very big with fraternities...You know, Scholastic magazine had a survey of high school students throughout the country and they chose Farrah as their favorite female," Trikilis said.

"We got a letter from a girl in Pennsylvania who said she was Farrah Fawcett's twin sister; and we got a letter from a guy who wanted to know Farrah's telephone number. He said he had to have it and that's all there was to it. He had to have it."

Carter Programs For 200 Days Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter will promote his domestic programs with a two-week national tour in March and will open a drive to reach a new strategic arms agreement by October, if he follows a plan that aides hope will give him the image of a "can-do" president.

In a proposed six-month White

House agenda, the aides also have suggested:

—An economic State of the Union address to Congress week after next.

—Meetings next month in Washington with the president of Mexico and the prime minister of Canada; sessions between Feb. 15 and March 5 with officials from Israel and the Arab nations, and a meeting after April 1 with a representative of mainland China.

Town Cuts Water Use

UHRICHSVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Fifteen thousand Uhrichsville and Dennison residents have been asked to cut down on their use of water for at least a week to help restore service to a four million gallon capacity reservoir that went dry.

The water drained from the reservoir Wednesday due to a combination of four main line breaks and several smaller breaks, water and sewer department Supt. Robert Norman said. He said cold weather prevented the city from pumping water back into the reservoir faster than it was leaking out.

An appeal to residents to conserve after the leaks were discovered backfired because panicky homeowners filled up buckets and bathtubs with what was left of the water, he said.

Norman said it will take a week to restore the reservoir to its normal level of 2.6 million to 3 million gallons of water. He said the communities normally consume 1.4 million gallons daily.

The department had replaced 500,000 gallons of water by Thursday, he said.

Meanwhile, residents of the village of West Salem in neighboring Wayne County remained without water today as workers continued to search for a waterline break that occurred Wednesday.

Those of the 1,000 villagers needing water were able to obtain it in containers from the fire department.

Gadfly is the name of several parasitic flies, including the botfly and the horsefly.

—A speech to the United Nations the week of March 6.

—Beginning a National Youth Opportunity Program to create jobs and ending the Office of Telecommunications Policy to eliminate waste and express "commitment to a free and vigorous media."

The 29-page agenda, proposed by aides including pollster Pat Caddell, combines "substantive and political" appraisals of activities necessary in "the first six months, and especially the first three months, when initial judgments will be made by the press, the public and Congress about the leadership of the Carter presidency."

It was not known how Carter has responded to the proposals, made in mid-or late December. But some recommendations already have been followed, and top Carter aides have said others will be.

Aides call the agenda "a working paper," not "a master plan," but sources say as far as they know it has not been superseded.

A copy of the agenda was obtained Wednesday by The Associated Press.

It says Carter must play these roles in his first 200 days: The unifier, who heals past divisions; the shaker, who prods the entrenched bureaucracy; the leader, caring and compassionate about the American people; and the manager, energetic and effective in solving national problems.

KING OF BEERS FOR OVER 100 YEARS!

U.S. Still 'Covenant' Nation

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

The trappings of a presidential inauguration symbolize qualities of the United States that led the late U.S. Senate chaplain Peter Marshall to call it a "covenant" nation.

That term, "covenant," in its original Biblical sense, means a compact between God and people in which God promises guidance in justice and right while the people, in turn, are obligated to pursue those ideals in community life.

"So help me God," the presidents down through the years have implored at the conclusion of their oath of office to uphold the nation's purposes. The "What's Your Blanket?" will be the Rev. Don Yocum's sermon topic Sunday at Good Shepherd United Methodist Church.

Pastor Carl Zehner has selected "So You've Got Problems" as his sermon theme at Trinity Lutheran Church Sunday.

Dr. Frank Irvine's topic Sunday at the First Presbyterian Church will be "What About Whitewash." The senior Luther League will have a rap session 7:30 p.m. Sunday at the Parish House. Reach out Day will be 9:30 a.m. at the Parish House.

phrase implies that sense of duty to a higher superintendence.

As the centerpiece of that national ritual, threaded with prayer, rededication and lofty aspirations, presidents traditionally have used the great, oldest book of God's dealing with humanity — the Bible.

In recent times, they've added a personal touch to the occasion by providing cherished, old family Bibles for their swearing-in.

For President Jimmy Carter Thursday, the book was an aged, but well-preserved family Bible that had been handed down through his mother's line of ancestors for 150 years.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale took the oath on a pulpit Bible that his father, a Methodist minister, had used in congregational worship in Minnesota. Mondale himself now is a Presbyterian.

Until the late 19th century, it was the task of the clerk of the U.S. Supreme Court to provide the Bibles for the inauguration ceremonies. But Grover Cleveland, in 1885, broke that tradition by bringing along a Bible given to him by his mother.

Use of family Bibles has been common since then, but not uniform. Franklin D. Roosevelt used a Dutch family Bible in 1933. Harry S. Truman in 1949 used two Bibles — both of them long-time family possessions.

Varying from that 20th century custom, however, Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1953 used the same Bible, nearly two centuries old, that the first president had used when he took the oath of office in 1789.

In Washington's case, after taking the oath, he bent over and kissed the book.

On the flyleaf of the Bible on which Thomas Jefferson took the oath in 1801, he recorded in small handwriting a page-long list of his favorite Scripture texts.

Generally, the Bibles used have been the King James translation of 1611, the main Protestant version until recent times. The first inaugural use of the long-prevalent Catholic translation, the Douay version of 1582, was by John F. Kennedy in 1961.

Lyndon B. Johnson, who succeeded the assassinated Kennedy, had his wife, Lady Bird, hold the Bible at his oath-taking ceremony.

Peanut Gallery At Courthouse

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — Butler County commissioners observed the inauguration of President Jimmy Carter Thursday by eating peanuts.

The commission, made up of two Republicans and one Democrat, found cups of peanuts in front of them when they arrived for a meeting.

The peanut-popping proceedings were kept impartial, however.

The peanuts came from North Carolina, not Georgia, according to Bernard Gudenkauf, county industrial development director.

Kinnison Joins Lutheran Panel

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — William A. Kinnison, president of Wittenberg University, has been appointed to a one-year term on a Lutheran World Cooperation standing committee.

Kinnison will serve on the committee on scholarship, international exchange and orientation, one of six standing committees of the organization.

The Lutheran World Cooperation is a joint agency of the American Lutheran Church and the Lutheran Church in America.

'Rock Classics' Mark Of Group

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Play an album of classical music by Chopin, Debussy or Rachmaninoff for the average rock music fan and you'll get a yawn, a shrug or a request for Fleetwood Mac or Led Zeppelin.

But Renaissance, a five-member British group featuring the classically trained voice of Annie Haslam, has sold more than a million albums and headlined in American concert halls by borrowing heavily from the melodies of the masters, adding lyrics and putting the music in a rock format.

"It may sound like I've had more, but I've really only had nine months of classical training — although at this point I can hit five octaves," said Miss Haslam. She relaxed in a Rutgers University dressing room after a recent performance before 2,900.

Pianist John Tout — with eight years of classical keyboard training — and acoustic guitarist Mick Dunford, combine with Miss Haslam's soprano voice to give the group a majestic, powerful — and at times, emotional — sound.

The band has no lead guitarist, an oddity in today's rock world, and relies on Jon Camp's agile, flowing bass to propel most of the songs. Audiences can hear and understand every word of the group's lyrics — also unusual in rock music.

Renaissance is a major concert attraction, commanding $10,000 and more for a performance. But geographical restrictions on its concert tour and the absence of a hit single has limited its national recognition.

The group's six albums have sold between 100,000 and 250,000 copies each — only fair by industry standards — with 60 per cent of sales in the New York and Philadelphia areas.

"We tried for a hit record from our second album but it didn't make it," said Camp, who handles most of the stage introductions for the group.

"We know about the problem with singles and we'll release 'Midas Man' from our new album and hope it hits. But most of our songs are long — five or 10 minutes — and we don't like to cut them up," he said.

Camp said the group has dumped its previous management and teamed up with John Scher, a leading promoter in New Jersey's rock scene, in hopes of cracking the national market.

An extensive February tour has been set to promote the release of the group's seventh album, "Novella," and Camp said the group has agreed to share top-billing and even perform as a second-billed group to win new fans.

The present Renaissance was formed out of an earlier band put together by members of the Yardbirds, one of the gruffest, hardest-rocking blues bands to come out of England in the 1960s.

Miss Haslam and Tour joined the original Renaissance in 1970, shortly before it dissolved. They retained the name and added Camp, drummer Terry Sullivan and later Dunford to round out the present lineup, which has remained intact for four years.

Church Council Sponsors Meet

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Council of Churches will sponsor the three-day 1977 Ohio Pastors Convocation beginning Monday.

Among the seminars and workshops scheduled are sessions on preaching, pastoral counseling, church and public schools, mass media and the role of ordained clergy.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Sis Retaliates With A Low Blow

DEAR ABBY: The clan gathered at my sister-in-law's house for a holiday dinner. Everyone was nice and friendly until Sis turned to me and in a very loud voice said, "Say, what color would your hair really be if you didn't dye it? Gray?"

Taken completely by surprise, I said the first thing that came to mind: "I'll tell you what color my hair really is if you tell me how much you really weigh." (Sis is very fat. She claims she has a thyroid condition, but she eats constantly.)

Well, things got pretty hot around here, and now the whole family—including my husband—is furious with me for insulting the hostess.

I don't see why her privacy is any more sacred than mine, but if you think I should apologize, I will.

NOT IRISH FOR NOTHING
DEAR IRISH: Even though she struck the first blow, you were childish and unkind to have struck a lower blow. If it will restore peace in the family, apologize.

DEAR ABBY: I have always believed in God, and in His goodness, but I am now having doubts.

There are 365 days in every year, yet on my wedding anniversary, the most joyous day of the year for me, God chose to take my beloved mom from this earth. So now, instead of celebrating my anniversary, it has become a day of sadness and mourning.

Then I had a son. On his 10th birthday, God chose to take my beloved father from me. Again, a happy day was turned into a sad one.

Have you any words of comfort for me, Abby? I feel as though the Lord has punished me, but for what, I do not know.

Another thing. People describe themselves as "God-fearing Christians." I have read the Scriptures and can find nothing in them that say we should FEAR God.

So, when people want to describe themselves as "good Christians," why do they say we are "God-fearing" Christians?

HAVING DOUBTS

DEAR HAVING: Read the Book of Job again and restore your faith in the Lord. According to my dictionary, "God-fearing" means "devout."

The Old Testament tells us (in Ecclesiastes) to "Fear God and keep His commandments."

DEAR ABBY: When letters come to you asking about whether a girl should wear a bra or not, you should take the opportunity to say, "Yes," with a capital "Y," and then explain that girls who have ample bosoms and fail to support them become victims of Cooper's Syndrome.

To further explain: Native African women whose pictures you see in the National Geographic magazine have never known what a brassiere was, and consequently their breasts are all stretched out and hang practically to their waists. They are victims of Cooper's Syndrome... or Cooper's droop.

Please tell girls that as soon as they have something to hold up, they should invest in a brassiere, and wear it faithfully.

When I see young girls with full bosoms going braless, bobbing up and down and thinking they are liberated, I want to cry. It's too late for me, so sign me...

FLIP-FLOP IN GARDEN CITY

DEAR FLIP: I'll pass your words on warning and wisdom on to my readers. Girls, hie thee to a corsetiere!

Veterans Questions Answered

EDITOR'S NOTE: Each week, the Circleville Herald, will publish a series of Questions and Answers of interest to veterans. These questions and answers are some of the many presented to James P. Shea, Pickaway County Veterans Service Officer. Any Veteran desiring further information on any VA Benefits should contact the Veterans Service Officer at 219 S. Court St.

(Q.) I am out of work. I understand your office will help a man find a job. Is this true?

(A.) I am sorry, but it is not true. We can only refer you to the unemployment office. We do not have job listings here. We often wish we did, so we could help with problems such as this, but it is out of our jurisdiction.

(Q.) If I can't find a job, is it possible to get welfare?

(A.) This is quite possible. The law states that any veteran with a discharge other than dishonorable, who has been a resident of the state one year and of the county six months is entitled to veterans welfare.

(Q.) I can't seem to find my World War II discharge. What can I do to get another?

(A.) This is very simple. We can make an application for a Certificate in Lieu of Lost or Destroyed Discharge, and can have it for you within 30-45 days.

(Q.) Is a World War II veteran still eligible for a G.I. Loan?

(A.) He most certainly is. The law has not expired for G. I. Loans for any veterans as yet. However, I think you can agree, that a World War II veteran, due to his age, would have more difficulty securing a G.I. Loan than a veteran of the Korean Conflict, or of the Vietnam era.

(Q.) I have not yet made application for my Vietnam State Bonus. Am I too late?

(A.) No you are not. The deadline for filing applications for the Vietnam State Bonus is Dec. 31, 1978.

(Q.) Can you help me get G. I. benefits for on the job training?

(A.) I cannot help you find a place of business that will give you on the job training, however, if you locate the business that will go along with this program, I can help get the training establishment approved by the VA and the State Approving Agency, and I can get all of your VA papers completed.

Job Search Restricted

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state Board of Education has limited the scope of its search for a replacement to retiring Supt. Martin W. Essex to Ohio residents.

Under state law appointed or elected officials must have been residents of the state for 30 days. The board could have side stepped the rule by selecting an out-of-state candidate while delaying his appointment 30 days to allow the person chosen to meet residency requirements.

Instead the board has adopted a resolution calling for candidate selection only from current residents.

A selection committee headed by Robert E. Williams of Xenia will receive nominations through Feb. 18 as the board searches for a replacement for Superintendent Martin W. Essex who will retire March 15.

The Rev. Thaddeus Garrett Jr. of Akron sought to allow nonresidents a chance in the nomination process but found little support among the 20 board members at the last meeting which dealt primarily with a plan for Cleveland school desegregation.

The nominees must have a master's degree, preferably a doctorate, and must have teaching or school administration experience.

Seek Development Coordination

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The rise of "sunbelt states" as a haven for industry has prompted Ohio officials to seek more ties with other midwestern states "for coordinated action on economic development challenges."

Gov. James A. Rhodes, along with the governors of Indiana, Illinois and Iowa recently asked the federal government for official recognition as the "MidAmerica Economic Development Region."

"The submission of this application is an important step toward our common goals, the pursuit of sound economic growth and the enhancement of the quality of life of the citizens of our region," the governors said in a letter to the U.S. Department of Commerce.

If recognition is granted, a limited amount of federal dollars will be made available to help the commission in its studies and surveys of common problems in the fields of energy, industrial development and jobs.

Ohio easily led all other states in population decrease last year, according to the U.S. Census Bureau, as 45,000 residents left. Indiana was second with an 11,000 drop, and the census bureau said a majority of Americans now live in southern and western states.

Sixty Ohio counties would be part of the Mid-America region; the state's 28 other counties are represented by the existing Appalachian Regional Commission.

Development Director James A. Duerk said efforts are also being made to obtain federal money for a more informal alliance with Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois and Minnesota. Ohio is not part of the Great Lakes Regional Commission, Duerk said.

On the legislative front, the chairman of the House Economic Affairs and Federal Relations Committee has proposed that Ohio host a Midwest Economic Conference.

"While sharing your concern about the South and Southwest, the Sunbelt," Rep. Edward J. Orlett, D-34 Dayton, said in a letter to Rhodes, "I am more inclined to support cooperation with other states of the Midwest as opposed to competition."

Orlett told Rhodes that his committee staff was already planning such a conference and "we would welcome the support and participation of your administration."

Two legislative committees, including Orlett's, hosted their own Ohio joint economic conference one year ago. But the meetings more closely resembled seminars and the conference ended its work quietly with a little-publicized report.

Duerk said the Rhodes Administration policy called for cooperation with other Midwestern states on common problems, but competition on individual projects.

"My reaction to economic conferences is that they are good if they produce something," Duerk said. "The conference they had last year has not produced to my knowledge a single recommendation."

'Tokyo Rose' Wins Pardon From Ford

CHICAGO (AP) — "Now I have a government to protect me," said Iva Toguri D'Aquino, who was cleared by President Ford of treason for her "Tokyo Rose" broadcasts after living for nearly three decades as a woman without a country.

"After all these years, it's hard for me to believe that it's all over and the pardon is really true," said Mrs. D'Aquino, a slight, 60-year-old Japanese-American woman whose voice was known to millions of World War II servicemen.

Mrs. D'Aquino, who spent more than six years in prison but consistently maintained her broadcasts did no harm to the Allied cause, had lost two previous bids for a presidential pardon. The pardon restores all her forfeited rights, including citizenship.

Now working as a shopkeeper in her family's gift store on Chicago's North Side, she spoke at a hastily called news conference Wednesday after announcement of the pardon, one of Ford's last acts in office.

As Iva Toguri, a native of Los Angeles and a UCLA graduate, she had just passed her 25th birthday in July 1941 when she sailed for Japan to care for a sick aunt. Because of her hurried departure, she failed to obtain a U.S. passport and was stranded in Tokyo when the war began after the bombing of Pearl Harbor.

She described those years as "living hell." Because she refused to give up her U.S. citizenship, she was considered an "enemy alien" and, without a food ration card, found it difficult to live even at subsistence levels.

On Books And Activities At The Library

What a week!! The weather hasn't been very kind to us, but in spite of bad parking, barricaded entrance and low heat and light levels, the Pickaway County Public Library has managed to serve a lot of people. We feel proud that the people of the community find the facility an important part of their activities even under adverse conditions.

We have managed to receive a good selection of novels this week to keep you reading during the cold spell. Mrs. Pollifax fans have a new treat as the popular heroine of Dorothy Gilman travels to Zambia. "Mrs. Pollifax On Safari" has the part-time agent overcoming dangers, breaking up a terrorist ring and capturing an assassin—all in good fun.

Disaster novels are becoming popular reading fare. "Twister" by Jack Bickham is a novel about nature's most ravaging force. It is also a novel about people who in one way or another are caught up in the consequences of the massive storm.

Ellery Queen has his 32nd anthology ready. "Magicians Of Mystery" is an entirely new collection of mysteries by famous writers in that field.

"Family Fortune" by Mignon G. Eberhart is a romantic novel of suspense set in the time of the Civil War. It's the story of the Chance family divided against itself. How it resolves its differences makes for an exciting novel of murder and suspense.

Thomas Keneally has written a tale of one man's heroism in the blood of battle. "Season Of Purgatory" is the story of a young surgeon who defies brutality in WW II by setting up a hospital and running it with stolen supplies.

A trough of low pressure from southern Lake Huron was to pass through Ohio today changing snow to snow flurries which were expected to end in all but the northeastern counties by sunset.

Light snow developed in west central Ohio early last evening and had spread over the remainder of the state soon after midnight. Little or no accumulation was reported.

women, "The Four Swans" by Winston Graham is the story of 2 powerful families caught up in the political turmoil of England in the late 18th century.

Donald MacKenzie's new novel "Raven And The Ratcatcher" provides the latest adventure for Detective Inspector Raven. This time he's on the trail of a safe cracker who's planning a million dollar job on the London bank.

Blossom Elfman, author of "The Girls Of Huntington House", has written another novel that speaks to the same problem—unwed mothers. "A House For Jonnie O" searches for a fresh and different solution to the problem.

"Ransom Run" by Martin Dibner is a taut, suspenseful tale of crime and pursuit in the great northern forests. It is filled with the lore of the woods and violent, explosive action.

Howard Kaplan's first novel is both realistic and chilling. "The Damascus Cover" is the story of a young Israeli spy captured by the Syrian Secret Police.

"Gallows Way" by Daoma Winston is a love story. Set in tobacco country just before the Civil War, Marrietta Garvey marries a man she doesn't love in order to save her plantation. The consequences make a richly textured story of violence and passion.

Gothic readers will enjoy "Dolphin Summer" by Carola Salisbury. The heroine finds pleasure and danger aboard a Mediterranean cruise ship.

If you're wondering what to do during these bad days, why not embark upon a self-improvement program. A new book "Diane von Furstenberg's Book Of Beauty" will tell you how to become a more attractive, confident and sensual woman. It's a guide to both beauty and health.

After the wear and tear on the family car this winter, it may need some help! The 1977 edition of Petersen's "Bib Book Of Auto Repair" will help you do it yourself and save. It's for American cars 1970 and later.

If the Universe holds a fascination for you, "The Amazing Universe" by Herbert Friedman is a must. A special publication by the National Geographic Society, it's loaded with beautiful illustrations and photos.

We all hope for better weather, but as long as we must be house-bound, might as well enjoy it with a book. Stop by anytime, we're keeping regular hours.

ALICE CANTER
642-3044

A young man from the Kingston area would be greatly cheered if he could get a card or two now and then. He is Jack Kramer and has been in the Burn Unit at University Hospital since Christmas Eve (his 21st birthday).

He and his two companions smelled gasoline and Jack immediately crawled under the car to investigate. An accident earlier in the evening evidently loosened or broke a gas line and the lighting of a cigaret lighter by someone tells the rest of the story. He has third degree burns over his body from the waist up and practically no eye-sight other than to tell light from dark. But his sister says he is quite pleased to get mail as he is very lonely and that way knows that somebody cares.

His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kramer and though they visit him regularly, cannot be there all the time. His address is Jack Kramer, 631-Burn Unit, University Hospital, Columbus, Ohio, 43210. Jack underwent some surgery but nature or results are not known at this time.

George L. Borders was discharged from the Ross County Medical Center on Monday where he was receiving treatment for a broken hip.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Derexson and son Charlie and Mrs. Florence Potts have returned from a two weeks sight seeing trip in Florida. A few of the places they visited were the Kennedy Space Center, Titusville, Clearwater and Sea World.

Calling on Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Moss over the weekend were their son, Larry and his daughter, Cheri and Miss Jackie Cole, of Columbus.

Quite a number, friends and relatives, attended the wedding of Dan Ratcliffe and Miss Christi Ann Haynes in Chillicothe, Saturday night. From the Kingston area was Dan's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Mettler, Mr. and Mrs. Rick Seymour, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Davis, Mr. and Mrs. David Hammond and Jeremy, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Bostick, and Scott, Alan Welch, John Kruchten, Don Beeman Jr., Joe Parks, Mrs. Evelyn Stephenson, Joe Stephenson, Miss Claudia Ramsey, Mrs. Jim Roe, Phillip and Dave and Mr. L. E. Hill, Mr. and Mrs.

Donald Norman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thornton, Mrs. Tom Coey, Roger Barnhart, Mike Davis.

From the Circleville area were Gene Wadlington and son, Terry, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Nelson, Jack Mettler, John and Tami, Mrs. Eunice Lauerman, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Whitten of Williamsport, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fosnaugh and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Howard McGee, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Overly, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Haynes and Eric, Teresa Ransdell, Mr. and Mrs. Don Haynes, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Haynes and family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Haynes.

Also from Kingston were Kim Seifert, Amy Lyons, Dancy Dearth, Bob Taylor. Other guests were from Chillicothe, Williamsport, Amanda, Frankfort, Columbus, Lancaster, Stoutsville, Athens, Hallsville, Adelphi and Hebron.

Minimal Loss At Trailer Fire

The Gregory Trailer Park home of Ronald Dameron was stuck by fire 9:11 p.m. Thursday, but quick work by the Harrison Twp. Fire Department kept damage to a minimum.

Actual loss estimate was $100. The fire apparently was started by a heat lamp, which was placed under the mobile home to thaw frozen water pipes.

Donkey Basketball Game Is Canceled

The Easter Seal donkey basketball game scheduled for Jan. 22 has been postponed.

The game time, to be played at the Circleville High School gymnasium, will be announced at a later date. All those people with tickets should keep them for the future date.

Democrats To Ratify Curtis As Chairman

WASHINGTON (AP) — With President Carter in the White House only one day, the Democratic National Committee is meeting to name Carter's handpicked nominee to head the party apparatus.

Kenneth M. Curtis, the former governor of Maine and an old friend of the new President, was expected to be elected party chairman by the Democratic committee today.

Curtis succeeds Robert Strauss, the Texas lawyer who became chairman in the wake of the disastrous 1972 presidential campaign and rebuilt the shattered Democratic coalition that helped put Carter in the White House.

Strauss' resignation is in keeping with a tradition that allows a new president to name his own chairman.

Most White House incumbents tend to diminish the national committee in favor of their own staffs, but Carter has big plans to work through Curtis to convert the party machinery into an organization largely dedicated to helping Carter keep his promise to be responsive to the wishes of the people.

Carter aides say he views the national party as an important part of his administration and hopes to make good use of it instead of treating it as a rival as have other presidents.

President Lyndon Johnson virtually dismantled the Democratic National Committee when he was in the White House. And Richard Nixon used his 1972 re-election committee to virtually replace the Republican National Committee.

Curtis said in an interview that he plans an ambitious building program and will put the party apparatus to work gathering issues data and campaign information that will be available to Democratic candidates. In addition, he plans to computerize polling data to give Carter and party candidates up-to-the-minute information on how the voters feel about any given issue.

Strauss is leaving Curtis and the party in better financial shape. He has worked to eliminate, or at least control, most of the painful financial problems of the past.

The Democratic party was staggered by a $9.4 million debt after the divisive 1968 campaign. Strauss has cut that debt to $2.3 million, which is programmed to be retired with monthly payments in about four years.

The party also completed the drafting of its charter at a "mini-convention" under Strauss two years ago, and the worst of the party reform fights are considered over, even though a rules study commission continues in operation.

ATTENDS SCHOOL — Don Davis, Pfizer Genetics dealer, Circleville, (front row, third from left), recently completed an intensive one-week course in seedsmanship held at Evansville, Indiana. Sponsored by Pfizer Genetics Inc., the School of Seedsmanship is a concentrated program of study in the history, development, genetic and agronomic characteristics, management and marketing of quality agricultural seed. The company is holding 15 such schools in 1977 and expects to train some 450 dealers this year. Similar basic schools will be held in the future, plus post-graduate courses are planned for those who have completed the initial training. The objective of the schools is to make Pfizer Genetics dealers more than salesman so that when they call on farmer customers they can go to them as advisors or counselors, according to Royce M. Chambers, Director of Sales Training and Dealer Development for Pfizer Genetics.

Girls Basketball To Gain Experience

ROUNDBALL CO-CAPTAINS — Susan Radcliff and Susan Stevenson both foresee a good season for their team at Circleville High School. Experience is a big factor, which Coach Joy O'Brien feels will be gained throughout the season.

By BRETT ALLEN

This year the Circleville girls' basketball team is led on the floor by Susan Radcliff and Susan Stevenson. They are the co-captains, and both are seniors. Miss Radcliff is a guard while Miss Stevenson plays center.

Miss Stevenson commented on this season by saying that the team has a lot of potential and should improve with experience. Miss Radcliff added that the team hopes to improve their showing over last year in the tournament and would like to encourage more team spirit.

Coach Joy O'Brien said that she will also be looking for leadership from Natalie Martin and Wanda Boyd. Miss O'Brien added that right now the team needs to improve on rebounding. She pointed out that the Tigers will give up height to most of their opponents.

Looking at this year's competition Miss O'Brien sees Washington C.H. and Hillsboro as the toughest league games with Logan Elm being the toughest non-league game. She concluded by saying that right now the team lacks experience which they will gain as the season goes on.

Marshall Says Primary School Is Influential

By SALLY SCHLEGEL

"In the complex society existing today, the American elementary school is the most influential aspect of our culture facing the children," states Deborah Marshall, sixth grade teacher at Court Street Elementary School.

A Circleville graduate, she attended Ohio State and there received her Bachelor of Science Degree and Elementary and Kindergarten Certification. In the future she said she hopes to earn her master's degree.

When asked to comment on smaller schools, Miss Marshall expressed a liking for the more individualized approach, which is hard to achieve in a large system. Her student teaching was done in the Canal Winchester schools.

"In our classroom, my principle goal is to help children realize what they want, what potential they have, and where they want to go, and to help them get there," she said.

CHS Grad Now Teaching Kindergarten

TERESA TROUTMAN

By DEBI GENTZEL

A new teacher joining the ranks of the teachers at Court Street School is Miss Teresa Troutman.

Miss Troutman, a CHS graduate, was graduated from Ohio University in 1976 and is in her first year teaching the kindergarten class. She said she enjoys working in a small school system because she gets to know each student individually, which she stated is her goal.

"I feel each child is a unique and important individual; therefore, I offer each child an atmosphere that is positive, creative, and motivating," concluded Miss Troutman.

Guidance Guidelines

Applications for the Pickaway-Ross Joint Vocational School for academic year 1977-78 are available in high school guidance office.

Applications for the Nurses Scholarship Award, sponsored by the Ohio State Firemen's Association, Inc., are available in the guidance office.

A representative from Columbus Tech will be here Wednesday at 10 a.m.

The Ohio Instructional Grant applications are now available in the guidance office. The Ohio Instructional Grant Program is a financial aid program designed to assist eligible students who are enrolled for full-time undergraduate study in participating Ohio institutions of higher education. Ohio Instructional Grants are not awarded upon the basis of academic achievement, as such, but upon the basis of relative financial need. Grants are awarded to the average as well as the superior student.

PAULA TUSSING

Senior Student Awarded Scholarship

Senior Paula Tussing has been awarded a $1,000 - a year academic scholarship to Ohio Dominican College.

Paula's point average is a 4.0, and she will be one of CHS' valedictorians. She said she is still undecided on what she will major in.

Paula's extra-curricular activities include Latin Club president, EMS, NHS, and basketball stat.

When asked how she felt about being chosen to receive this scholarship, she said, "I was surprised and excited. I'm waiting, however, to hear from some other schools so I don't know if I will accept it."

Two Students Featured From Pickaway-Ross

By BECKY WOLFORD

Jim McCoy and David Rose are two Circleville High School students attending the Pickaway-Ross Joint Vocational School. Both are enrolled in the welding program.

Jim resides with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Darrell McCoy at 933 S. Pickaway St. He is a 17-year-old senior, who enjoys hunting and water skiing as his hobbies.

Jim feels that the teachers at PRJVS are very polite and helpful. After he graduates, he plans to work and "make lots of money". Jim says, "welding is fun, but it takes skill."

David, who is also a 17-year-old senior, resides with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hershel Rose at 648 Swackhammer Road.

He likes his program very much, and he feels that vocational education gives a student a better future to look forward to.

Hunting, fishing and water skiing are among David's hobbies. After he graduates, he plans to get a job as a welder. "Welding is a challenge and a good trade to learn," comments David.

Vocational Industrial clubs of America (VICA) is one of the organizations that the boys are involved in. Welding and learning to read blueprints are just some of the things they do in their programs.

Speakers Slated For GOP Meet

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James Rhodes, former Sen. Robert Taft Jr. and two Republican National Committee members from Ohio will speak Tuesday at a meeting of GOP county leaders.

State party chairman Kent B. McGough said about 200 county party officials will join members of the Republican state committee at the luncheon session for an update on party activities planned through 1978.

Also scheduled to speak are national committee members Martha C. Moore and Ray C. Bliss.

One of the most famous of the many remarkable skeletons found in Ohio was that of the ground sloth, or Megalonyx (big claw), discovered by Dr. William Goforth in the Cincinnati region during the early 1800's.—AP

Helen Cornelius: New Country Star

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — "Jim Ed Brown, meet Helen Cornelius."

Three hours after that recent introduction, the veteran country music star and his new singing partner recorded his first hit in three years and propelled her from obscurity to stardom.

The two had never met before recording "I Don't Want to Have to Marry You." She was a little-known singer and songwriter, living quietly in Hannibal, Mo., raising three children between 12 and 15.

Helen Cornelius signed an RCA recording contract in 1975 but had no hits. Nevertheless, a year later producer Bob Ferguson picked her as a perfect partner for Brown.

After the success of "I Don't Want to Have to Marry You," she joined Brown's road show and became a regular on his syndicated television show, "Nashville on the Road." She moved to Nashville in December.

She and Brown have become one of the most successful country duos and probably will contend for duo of the year. Their current release, "Saying Hello, Saying I Love You, Saying Goodbye," is in the top 10.

"She's been able to step in, and boy have we carried her high," said Brown, who at 6-foot-2 towers over his singing partner by more than a foot. "She's taken control, is settled and has goals. I think she's on her way."

Miss Cornelius, 35, admits she was overwhelmed by her sudden success.

"The greatest challenge was overcoming my fear," said the talkative singer who won "The Ted Mack Amateur Hour" competition three times in 1960.

"I had a fear of being a professional and not having had the experience to cope with it. I didn't know how to accept the adulation of people; I felt unworthy of it."

"I was home very little and would get upset on the road; I cried all afternoon and didn't know why; it was simply the fact that I was away from home and adjusting to a new life. I felt insecure, but I don't have those feelings anymore."

Brown is easy to work with, she said. Her background is very similar to Loretta Lynn's. Both are from rural backgrounds with large families, both married while teen-agers and both had children shortly after marriage.

"I was born and raised on a farm in the sticks," she said. "The boys used to say we lived at 40th and plum — 40 miles plum out in the sticks. I drove the tractor, put up hay and did everything you do on a farm except help with the animals."

"I was the next to youngest in a family of eight. We didn't have much and I grew up on hand-me-downs. I learned so much about appreciating life that I wouldn't trade my childhood for anything. My desire to achieve came out of this."

Her husband, Lewis, has provided constant encouragement.

Army Lieutenant's Death Investigated

PAULDING, Ohio (AP) — A continuing Army investigation into the death of a Paulding soldier who died from overexposure during a Florida training exercise has shown "no need for disciplinary action," a military spokesman said Thursday.

"They are still looking into the matter down there," a spokesman at Ft. Benning, Ga., said about the death of 2nd Lt. Gary L. Mielke, 23.

The investigation has shown no need for any disciplinary action to be taken against anybody."

Mielke, a ROTC graduate of Ohio State University, was buried Thursday in Paulding.

Mrs. Carl Mielke, the soldier's mother, said she preferred not to comment on whether she is satisfied with the Army's explanation of her son's death.

The Army spokesman said the probe is standard procedure in such incidents.

Mielke was found dead Sunday in Florida Panhandle swamplands near Camp Rudder, Fla., after being missing from his Ranger training platoon since Jan. 13, the Army spokesman said.

Sixto A. Caceres, 28, a Nicaraguan officer undergoing the same training, also died after he and Mielke became separated from their platoon during a torrential rainstorm, the spokesman said. The unit was participating in routine counterinsurgency warfare patrol in 50-degree weather, he said.

Caceres' body was found immediately, but Mielke's body was not discovered until Sunday.

Five other members of the platoon were hospitalized, the Army said.

"We tried to get more details from the officer who accompanied Gary's body, but he couldn't tell us any more," the father said.

Mielke talked by phone to his parents shortly before leaving Ft. Benning, Ga., for the final phase of his Ranger training in Florida.

"He said he talked to some boys who had just come back," his father said. "They said he would be in for a rough time, but he thought he was prepared for it."

An Ohio literary periodical that lived longest of its time was the Ladies' Repository and Gatherings of the West, published in Cincinnati 1841-1876, containing articles on education, religion, science, travel and literature.—AP

Students' Enthusiasm Measured In Spirit Week

By CATHY KLIM

CHS Student Council will sponsor Spirit Week Monday to Friday next week. Students and faculty will be expected to show their school spirit. Monday will be faculty day. Teachers should wear hats and coordinating outfits.

Tuesday is for sophomores, Wednesday is the day for juniors and Thursday is senior day.

Barometers will be posted in the main hall to show the progress of each class.

Friday will be red and black day. There will be a pep rally in the afternoon. Everyone is asked to sit with his class since judging will also include how well each class cheers as a whole.

"Spirit Week is becoming an annual event, and with the support of everyone we will keep it this way," stated Pam Pontious, spirit chairman.

Willie's Dillies

By BILL MCGAFFNEY
Herald Sports Editor

Has anyone in the county seen one of these guys who is always making the statement that "we sure don't have the winters that we used to have?"

We haven't been able to locate any of them and feel that they could be buried in one of those snow drifts—"Like we used to have in the good old days."

We have had our car buried and stuck—our feet and ears frozen—worn as many clothes in the house as we have out—and had to take another mortgage on the house in order to pay our gas bill.

This we can put up with—But about every five minutes or so on television or radio some "clown" keeps telling us that we have things too soft and makes us feel ashamed of ourselves.

After living in Youngstown most of our lives we should be used to these "good old fashioned winters"—But, we can honestly say this has to rank with the best of them.

It has been 10 years since we left "Steel Town" and became a member of Pickaway County—A place that we will also be grateful to for accepting us for what we are and making it just about the best 10 years of our lives—But, someone is just going to have to put a stop to winters like this which has to be, as the rooster said, something to "snow" about.

It certainly has played havoc with our basketball programs and it is going to make Houdinis out of a lot of athletic directors in order to get these games worked into the schedule.

The only one we know of that has really enjoyed the ice and snow is our Mrs. Kelly who has hired out as head dog in the crosstown sled team.

But, in all fairness, we really can't complain—We live on the Southside of town—Just pity those poor folks who live on the Northside—Because everyone knows, the farther north you go, the colder it gets.

Our "fearless" forecast—We predict that spring sports will be a blessing to one and all this year.

Until next time, have a nice day—be a good sport.

Tiger Girls Freeze Bexley Cagers, 59-25

Even the cold weather couldn't cool off the Circleville girls varsity cagers who overwhelmed Bexley, 59-25, Thursday on the Tigers' court.

The Red and Black cagers led all the way, 11-3, 28-8 and 44-15, and were never in any serious trouble.

Coach Joy O'Brien used the complete squad with all girls seeing action for at least a quarter.

Natalie Martin was the big gun for the Tigers with 20 points, Sue Frericks netted 12, Sue Radcliff, Kathy Fanale, Mary Wyatt and Sue Stevenson each hooped six, Michelle Nolan tallied two and Ann Titus had one.

Circleville hit 27 of 63 from the floor for 43 per cent and converted five of 10 from the charity stripe for 50 per cent.

The tight Tiger defense kept Bexley from getting the good shots and the Lions were nine of 55 from the floor for 16 per cent and seven of 15 from the free throw line for 47 per cent.

Circleville won the battle of the boards, 41-35, with Sue Frericks, Natalie Martin, Sue Stevenson and Mary Wyatt leading the way.

In the turnover department, Circleville had 24 while Bexley misplayed the ball 26 times.

"I was very pleased with the fine performance turned in by our girls, especially after the long layoff," coach Joy O'Brien commented. "We were in complete control of the game and our players handled themselves very well."

The Tiger reserves also turned in a great game as they stopped Bexley, 22-

Phoenix Roadrunners Bomb Cincinnati, 9-4

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Goalie Gary Kurt was not satisfied despite setting a World Hockey Association record with three assists. "Too loose," he said after facing 43 shots in helping the Phoenix Roadrunners bomb the Cincinnati Stingers 9-4 Thursday night.

"We gotta tighten up the defense," added Kurt, "especially when we get back on the road."

The game was wide open with the two teams keeping goalies at both ends busy. Defensemen Gary Lariviere, Seppo Repo and Mike Hobin each had two goals for the winners, who had 51 shots on goal.

Quebec rallied and edged New England 5-4 after trailing 3-0 in the first period and San Diego downed Edmonton 5-1 in other WHA games.

In 12 years of coaching basketball at the University of South Carolina, Frank McGuire has a 222-95 record. He began at St. John's University in Brooklyn in 1948 with a 12-11 mark.

AIA Upsets USF; Wins Cage Clash 104-85

By DICK JOYCE
AP Sports Writer

Maybe it was the home court advantage.

It apparently helped a California-based group called Athletes in Action because the team upset the University of San Francisco, the nation's top-ranked college basketball team, 104-85 Thursday night at its home court in Anaheim, Calif. AIA's previous 364 games in its 9½ years of existence were on the road.

But these college basketball graduates now playing for the sports arm of the Campus Crusade for Christ recently found a home at the Anaheim Convention Center after all those years of away games.

The game was an exhibition, so the NCAA will not count it against the Dons, who boast a 19-0 record against college opponents.

"Well," said an AIA spokesman, "We didn't have much of a following for the first nine years, and we didn't think we could afford to play any home games."

A crowd of 6,715 saw Tim Hall, Irv Kiffin and Ralph Drollinger lead AIA, which claims it plays the toughest amateur schedule in the nation, to its 24th victory in 30 games this season.

Meantime, fifth-rated Michigan beat 19th-rated Purdue 82-76 and 16th-ranked Arizona downed Utah 102-98 in games involving other Top Twenty teams Thursday night.

Athletes in Action got 20 points from the 6-foot-8 Hall, from Colorado State, and 18 each from the 6-9 Kiffin, from Oklahoma Baptist, and the 7-2 Drollinger from UCLA. Drollinger challenged San Francisco's 6-11½ Bill Cartwright and hit seven of 10 shots from the field, most of them 15-foot jumpers. AIA outrebounded the Dons 50-37.

AIA takes on seventh-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas next week — at home.

Michigan Coach Johnny Orr has found out the hard way that he may be right in claiming he has the best three guards in the nation.

When Rickey Green, the Wolverines' star guard, suffered a back injury with 7:36 remaining against Purdue, Orr called on Dave Baxter. The 6-foot-2 junior from Detroit responded with 10 points in the last 6:13, helping Michigan to a home court Big Ten Conference triumph.

Green twisted his back while scoring on a fast-break layup that put Michigan ahead 69-59 and was listed as a questionable starter against Illinois Saturday.

It was Michigan's 12th victory against one loss and made the Wolverines 5-0 in Big Ten play.

Green was Michigan's leading scorer with 22 points while Phil Hubbard scored 19 points and grabbed 14 rebounds. Baxter finished with 14 points.

Herman Harris scored 35 points, 23 in the first half, as Arizona trounced Utah for its 29th straight home victory. Utah rallied from a 19-point deficit and trailed 99-96 with one minute left. But Harris tossed in three points for the Wildcats, 13-2 over-all.

In another Western Athletic Conference game, Arizona State beat visiting Brigham Young 86-84 in overtime on James Holliman's goal with three seconds remaining. Mark Landsberger topped ASU with 25 points. BYU's Mark Handy bagged 21 points.

Stretch Gregory's short jumper with 10 seconds left gave Wisconsin a 61-60 victory over visiting Northwestern and its first Big Ten conference triumph, snapping a five-game losing streak. Gregory led the Badgers with 15 points while Billy McKinney topped Northwestern with 29.

Greg Kesler's 24 points led host Michigan State 67-58 over Illinois, which got 20 points from Rich Adams. Spartans Coach Jud Heathcoate benched his starting team for about five minutes in the first half, a move he claimed sparked his team to victory.

David Thompson tallied 22 points and Carlton Byrd 21 in Florida State's homecourt 97-74 win over South Florida, raising the Seminoles' record to 9-7. It marked the 200th coaching victory for FSU Coach Hugh Durham.

Robert Scrutens scored 22 points as host Creighton overwhelmed Rockhurst 79-62, boosting its record to 13-2.

Eddie Jordan returned to his hometown of Washington, D.C., and helped Rutgers, 10-4, top George Washington 87-84 with a late steal and layup. Hollis Copeland scored 23 for Rutgers.

Charlie Brent poured in 22 second-half points to power Wichita State, 11-4, over Tulsa 68-48 in a Missouri Valley Conference contest at Wichita.

In other games, Virginia Military defeated Richmond 88-70; New Hampshire stopped Boston University 76-70; Wisconsin-Milwaukee routed Centenary 82-61; Utah State coasted over Denver 94-81 and Pepperdine beat Loyola of Los Angeles 69-57.

Student tickets only will also be sold at the junior high school Tuesday.

The doors to the gym will open at 6 p.m. Tuesday with the reserve game getting underway at 6:30 p.m.

OSU Faces Perennial Cage Powers

dropped a pair at home.

Miller's major worry against the Hoosiers is Indiana's front line size of Benson, 6-5 Mike Woodson and 6-9 Jim Robertson. "They have outstanding rebounding strength," he said.

The Buckeyes, whose seven over-all victories already top last season's entire output, will go with their usual threesome up front. Tony Hall, 6-4, and Terry Burris, 6-6, will operate at forwards and 6-7 Jim Ellinghausen at center.

Ohio State produced triumphs at Wisconsin and Northwestern last week and Miller said, "We had some real plusses on the road, especially the rebounding of Hall."

The Buckeyes, already matching their two conference victories a year ago, are outrebounding opponents 42-35 per game. But they may have not faced a rebounding opponent of the caliber of Indiana, owning a 44-34 bulge on the boards.

"The key is rebounding," said Miller. "If we do that well, we can do the other things well. It's no secret we have to cheat on Benson. We've got to play team defense."

Bobby Knight, Indiana's coach, has won only three of five decisions at his alma mater and expects another tough time. "This is a well-coached, enthusiastic team that can play with anyone," he said of Ohio State, 7-6 to the Hoosiers' 8-6.

Knight looked back at Indiana's 61-60 home loss Monday night to Michigan State and said, "We are not a great team—at times not even a good one—and are vulnerable each time we take the court."

"We have serious shortcomings in our game to improve before we can win in our league."

Benson continues to be Indiana's chief weapon with 18.7 point and 11.2 rebound averages, far ahead of any Buckeye. Kelvin Ransey, a 6-1 freshman guard, paces Ohio State with 13.9 points per contest.

Elsewhere, Cincinnati's second-ranked Bearcats and Miami's Mid-American tile favorites hit the rebound trail Saturday.

Cincinnati, its hopes of an unbeaten season evaporating in an 83-77 setback at Louisville Wednesday, visits Tulane in a Metro 7 Conference duel. The Bearcats are bidding for their 13th victory in 14 games this season.

Miami, stunned at home last week by Central Michigan 78-76, has dropped to a third-place tie in the MAC with Northern Illinois. The Redskins, 3-1 in the league, are home Saturday for Ohio University (1-4).

In other MAC games Saturday, conference-leading Central Michigan (3-0) visits defending champion and second-place Western Michigan (4-1), Toledo (2-2) is at Northern Illinois (3-1), Bowling Green (2-1) at Ball State (2-3) and Eastern Michigan (0-5) at Kent State (1-3).

OSU Faces Perennial Cage Powers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Eldon Miller, Ohio State's rookie basketball coach, broke into a grin and said, "I hope I feel this good next Thursday."

Miller was relishing a pair of Big Ten road victories, but the future isn't so bright. Looming on the horizon are the nation's one-two powers of a year ago, Indiana and Michigan.

Indiana, which beat Michigan for the national championship in 1976, visits Ohio State Saturday night while the Wolverines follow Monday night.

The Hoosiers, rebuilding around 6-foot-11 All-American center Kent Benson, are off to a rocky start in defense of their conference title. Indiana is fourth with a 3-2 record, Ohio State fifth at 2-2.

Both sides are young and both have won twice on the Big Ten road and

Race Horse Proves Boon To Church

WEST MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The Rev. C.L. Harris isn't a diehard horse racing enthusiast, but he has good reason to follow the fortunes of one pacer.

Rambling Willie, the Ohio Harness Horse of the Year in 1975 and 1976, has earned almost $29,000 the last two seasons for the Rev. Mr. Harris' West Mansfield Church of Christ.

The minister's daughter, Vivian Farrington, co-owner of Rambling Willie, tithes a percentage of the 7-year-old gelding's winnings to the church.

Bob Farrington, Mrs. Farrington's husband and an outstanding harness driver-trainer, had misgivings over spending $15,000 for Rambling Willie as a 2-year-old.

"Bob thought he'd be a good $10,000 claimer horse. Now he says we'll never have another one like him in our lifetime," said Mrs. Farrington.

Rambling Willie, the nation's Aged Pacer of the Year in 1975 and 1976, has won about $650,000. His earnings last year, almost $296,000, is an all-time record for a gelding. His best mile time is 1:55 3-5.

Without Willie, the pastor says his church would face the same financial woes of any other small, rural congregation. Instead, it has been possible to remodel virtually the entire building and even hire an assistant minister.

New York Nets Lose To Kansas City

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When is it going to end for the New York Nets?

The Nets lost their 12th straight National Basketball Association game Thursday night after learning earlier in the day that star guard John Williamson would be sidelined for about three games. Tonight, the Nets face the Washington Bullets.

In the Nets' latest setback, they were routed 123-93 by the Kansas City Kings behind rookie Richard Washington's 26 points and 16 rebounds.

Walter Michael Dies

CLEVELAND (AP) — Walter Michael, noted harness horse breeder and industrialist who built Northfield Park here, has died at his winter home in Sun City, Ariz. He was 76.

A former president of the U.S. Trotting Association, Michael owned Pickwick Farms at Bucyrus, which produced some well-known stallions, including Attorney, Gene Abbe, Baron Hanover and Chris Time.

Ruling OKs Cage Teams

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — High school teams whose schools are closed during the upcoming basketball tournaments will be eligible to play, the Ohio High School Athletic Association board of control ruled Thursday.

Harold Meyer, the commissioner of the OHSAA, expects some schools may be shut because of a shortage of natural gas. Even so, teams can still participate in the postseason playoffs.

However, a local school board can decide not to permit its teams to take part. In that case, its opponent will automatically advance to the next round of the tournament.

Meyer also reported to the board that football playoff attendance had dwindled to 37,941 last fall. In 1974, the playoff crowds reached 52,485 and were 49,145 in 1975.

To combat this, the board will match regional winners by proximity next fall. The semifinal pairings will not be made until the regional champions are determined, the OHSAA ruled.

The first Ohio high school girls swimming meet will be May 20-21 at Ohio State.

James J. Mains of Ironton was elected the new president of the OHSAA board with Michael Mazza of Cleveland Rhodes becoming vice president. New board members are Paul Sarchet of Circleville, R. D. Rex of Stryker and Chris Stefan of Cincinnati Anderson.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of husband and father Albert Hill who passed away January 21, 1976.

January comes with sad regrets the day and the month we miss never forget, for in our hearts you will always stay loved, and remembered every day. In the stillness of the night our tears will often flow, to think how suddenly you left us on this day, one year ago. We wanted so much to keep you, we watched you day by day, until at last with breaking hearts we saw you slip away.

Dear God please take this message to our loved one up above, tell him how much we miss him and give him all our love.

Sadly Missed by Wife Aldo and Daughter Ruth and Family.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth Sign.

FOR SATURDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): An unexpected invitation to an evening get-together holds some interesting surprises. Just what you need!

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Self-control and a determination to avoid arguments required now. Persons born under some Signs may be a bit "edgy" so do nothing to stir up differences.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): You may have to make some quick moves. Answer is to have alternative methods in mind. Some of your philosophical concepts are now subject to sudden change.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Extravagance in general not recommended, but spending on business entertainment now justified if good will results.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Don't let blind loyalty to a friend or associate involve you in a bizarre situation. It's a day for being strictly conventional.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): If you take minor annoyances in stride, as Virgoans usually do, you should enjoy your day. Chosen goals are nearer. Increased favors indicated.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Travel accented here. A short trip made on the spur of the moment could produce most interesting results.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): You may now be the recipient of some "inside information" regarding a business deal. Act on Monday.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Great joy on the home front! Some important papers you thought you had lost or accidentally destroyed suddenly come to light.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): This could be a day of great personal achievement. Make plans for attaining cherished objectives, but don't expect the unreasonable.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Avoid present tendencies toward recklessness and extravagance. You could regret such actions later.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): You may have been dwelling too much and too long on job and business affairs. Seek out your gayest and most frivolous companions and indulge in a bit of escapism.

YOU BORN TODAY have an amazingly quick mind; are often brilliant, sometimes erratic, in your methods. But no matter how, you DO achieve. You are a born activist; usually have many irons in the fire at the same time. But, also, you tend to scatter energies unwisely and to procrastinate with "musts" — which often leads to confusion and chaos as you try to make up for lost time. Once you learn to be systematic and to work at a steady gait, you not only will accomplish more but will be happier in the doing. You enjoy travel; are courageous, even against odds; are independent of spirit and extremely self-confident. Fields in which you could excel: literature, painting, music, the stage, designing and interior decoration. Birthdate of: George Gordon (Lord) Byron, renowned poet; Francis Bacon (Viscount St. Albans), writer, philosopher.

Views On Television

LOS ANGELES (AP) —

ABC took an admirable step when it set aside eight consecutive nights, starting this Sunday, to air its $6 million adaptation of "Roots," the superb book by black author Alex Haley.

He spent 12 years writing the book, tracing his family's history starting in the mid-18th century, when British slaver-runners abducted one of his ancestors in Africa and sold him at auction in America.

It should be read by all. But I think those who've already read it will be mighty disappointed, even angered, at what executive producer David L. Wolper allowed to happen in Sunday's two-hour premiere.

It starts, as did the book, in the village of Juffure in Gambia, where in 1750 a boy named Kunta Kinte — played in later scenes by LeVar Burton, a fine young actor — was born and raised to manhood.

The African scenes, in which Cicely Tyson and Thalmus Rasulala play the boy's parents, are relatively faithful to the book, save a cameo role cooked up to show off — and badly — football's O. J. Simpson.

But an, unforgivable alteration of Haley's early chapters comes in a flash-ahead scene when Ed Asner, as a ship's captain in Annapolis, Md., in 1765, learns his new command is a slave ship.

A devout Christian, he's deeply troubled at the thought of engaging in the wretched business of hauling humans for sale, though not enough to bow out. He leaves the grisly details of his cargo to someone else.

That someone is a cheery, callous, foul-mouthed officer — Ralph Waite — a veteran of 18 slave runs who muses whether to have a "tight pack," 200 slaves below deck in chains, or a "loose pack" of 170.

No doubt scribes William Blinn and Ernest Kinney created the troubled captain role to show at least a bit of conscience existed.

But Haley's book makes abundantly clear the captain's conscience went only so far as to make him force-feed slaves too weak to exercise aboard his ship, lest they die and cost him money.

Haley's depiction of evil was stark. Sunday's version pulls punches in changing the captain, only briefly described in the book, to a major figure who at least worried about evil while engaging in it.

It sharply reduces the impact of Haley's powerful story. True, David Greene's direction tries to convey slavery's horrors, particularly in below-decks scenes where African men lie chained in rows, in filth, with some, like Kunta Kinte, defiantly plotting escape.

There also are explicit references to the fact the ship's crewmen amused themselves by raping the slave women, some of the women shown bare-breasted both aboard ship and earlier in Africa.

But few scenes — and some may find all very disturbing — come close to those so graphically, chillingly described by Haley. They don't capture the full brutality.

Succeeding ABC editions of "Roots," which ends Jan. 30, go from colonial-era slavery through the Civil War and draw to a close in relatively modern times in Henning, Tenn., home of Haley's grandmother.

Classroom Blast Kills 2 Persons

PITTSBURGH (AP) — When Bernie Payne rushed from a nearby classroom and saw the twisted rubble that seconds before had been a University of Pittsburgh lecture hall, he thought of his fellow students and said, "My God, I hope there weren't a lot in there."

There weren't, but two of the 20 or so people inside — early arrivals for a lecture — were killed when an explosion destroyed the science hall auditorium Thursday. Dozens more were injured.

Had the blast come 20 minutes later, the auditorium would have been filled with 150 students.

Police were investigating the possibility that laboratory chemicals or gases caused the explosion. There was no evidence of foul play, they said. The building was steamheated, and Alex Kaminsky, director of plant services, said the natural gas line that led to a burner on a lab table could not have been the cause.

An adjoining auditorium in the 16-year-old hall was undamaged, and an adjacent five-story complex of three buildings was evacuated safely. There was no fire, but dozens of windows in the area were shattered.

"All we could see were girders," said Payne. "And the cement was sliding and rolling down. The building was still crumbling. You could see that one of the lecture halls had just crumbled inward."

Shelley Dubin, who was in the adjacent auditorium, said, "I turned around and looked back, and I just saw cement and steel falling. It was just like a movie."

A total of 45 people were treated at four hospitals, including about a dozen firemen who inhaled toxic gases stored in basement laboratories.

Three of the injured were in guarded condition, two were in serious condition and two were in fair condition. The remainder were treated and released.

The dead were identified as Carleen Curry, 35, a secretary from nearby Shadyside, and Patricia Hostetler, 20, a student from Donegal. Both had been crushed.

Public Meetings

THURSDAY

Pickaway County District Library Board of Trustees, 3 p.m. at the Library.

PRJVS Board Reorganizes

The Pickaway Ross Joint Vocational School held its organizational meeting Thursday. It had been rescheduled from Jan. 14 due to bad weather.

Eldon Shoemaker of the Ross County Board of Education was elected president and Nelson Jones of Pickaway County Board was named vice president.

The oath of office was administered to reappointed board members, Mrs. Joan Hess, Dr. George Schaaf, Nelson Jones, Forrest Brown and Paul Wendell Gearhart.

They set the time and place of regular monthly meetings as 8 p.m. the third Thursday of each month at the vocational center.

At the regular meeting which immediately followed, the board reviewed financial reports and accepted them for filing.

Approved the purchase of liability insurance for members of the board.

Authorized advertising for bids for additional greenhouse, space.

Reviewed the recent weather closings and the probable effects on calendars of participating schools.

Approved adult education courses and instructors for the winter term.

Received a report on the adult education program for the fall term which showed a total of 626 participants.

Approved the purchase of some parts components for use in instruction in auto mechanics from the Deercreek Auto Parts Co.

Authorized conducting of a consumer education workshop for all home economics teachers in the area to be held at the vocational school in June.

Reviewed the student registration procedures for the 1977-78 school year.

FB Council Hosted By Pettys

The January meeting of the Grain and Meat Producers Farm Bureau Council was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Petty, Pickaway-Saltcreek Road.

Dave Petty, chairman, conducted the business meeting. Sue Walker gave highlights about the Christmas party for those members who were unable to attend.

Nathan Wilson, who was named the county's outstanding young farmer by the Circleville Jaycees is the fourth recipient of the honor from his council. Previous winners are Dave Petty, Bill Walker and Paul Azbell.

Refreshments were served to Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Walker and Mr. and Mrs. Brad Dunkle.

The Feb. 26 meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Brad Dunkle.

SCOPS To Meet

The annual meeting of the South Central Ohio Preservation Society Inc. will be held 2 p.m. Jan. 30 in the common pleas court room in the Ross County Court House, Chillicothe.

The Scioto River Basin in SCOPS natural history project is L. Bennett Coy, general manager of the Miami Conservance District and an expert on river corridors.

NEW JAYCEES — Doug Clark and John Weaver are installed as new members of the Circleville Jaycee Club by the visiting president of the Portsmouth Jaycee Club during Thursday's Membership Night. Jack Clark, right, sponsored both new members.

Carter Down To . . .

Capitol to the White House, his wife holding his hand. Daughter Amy walked several blocks with her parents.

That act, symbolic of his oft-repeated campaign promise to stay close to the people, came as a complete surprise to all but the Secret Service, whom he informed of his plan three weeks earlier.

And despite the icy temperatures, the President obviously enjoyed the mile and one-half stroll. It capped, he said, a "perfect day."

The dramatic walk also served to mute criticism from many who felt that his inaugural address lacked punch, at least in delivery.

It was a short, solemn speech in which the new President declared that "I have no new dream to set forth today, but rather urge a fresh faith in the old dream."

But the line that seemed to draw the greatest appreciation was the one which he opened: "For myself and for our nation, I want to thank my predecessor for all he has done to heal our land."

With that, Gerald R. Ford, a private citizen who planned to be out golfing today in Southern California, bit his lip to stifle the tears while the audience confirmed Carter's tribute with hearty applause.

"I don't deny that I got a little sentimental," the outgoing president told reporters later. "We've had 2½ great years and you can't help but be a little emotional."

Ford was close to tears again when he and his wife, Betty, were honored by a military review at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., prior to their departure in the presidential jetliner for Monterey, Calif., and a golfing vacation.

Between festivities, Carter quickly got down to his first official business as President, signing a document that formally nominated his Cabinet.

The Senate then confirmed eight Cabinet members by voice vote, but deferred action on the other three because of requests for roll call votes. Those will come later, probably next week, for Joseph Califano as secretary of health, education and welfare; F. Ray Marshall as secretary of labor and Griffin B. Bell as attorney general.

At dusk Thursday, Carter was behind his new desk in the Oval Office, which looked a bit bare without the personal items that Ford had taken with him.

There, the President announced that he will meet next Tuesday with congressional leaders, and will convene the full Cabinet later in the week. His press secretary, Jody Powell, added later that Carter planned a tour around the nation early in his term, because he "is very concerned about not becoming isolated."

But for the first two days of his presidency, at least, Jimmy Carter was certainly not isolated. That walk along Pennsylvania Avenue, with Amy prancing, jumping and playing step-on-a-crack, break-your-mother's-back, was alone enough to shake the recent legend that presidents must be removed from the people.

Except for three minor knots of demonstrators, off the route of the two-hour parade led by the new President, it was just the day that Carter could have hoped, one of harmony and unity.

From their solar-heated reviewing stand, the Carters and Vice President Walter F. Mondale and wife Joan took the salute of the full procession of floats, bands and marching units from every state.

Then, prior to the evening's partying, the President and Rosalynn Carter took a stroll through the executive mansion. "I thought I'd look around," he said. "I never have seen it."

Mondale and his wife, meanwhile, headed for their official residence, becoming the first true occupants of the vice presidential mansion in a residential section far from the White House.

Pickaway Council On Aging Hears Of Nursing Programs

The Pickaway Council On Aging met at the Pickaway Community Building with President William L. Smith presiding.

Cynthia Daughterman, administrator of the Visiting Nursing program of Blue Cross and Blue Shield, spoke on the benefits of Medicare Insurance. The benefits of skilled nursing, speech therapist and physical therapist after being hospitalized must be prescribed by the doctor.

There are 100 visits each year. For a renewal of benefits, there is a 60 day waiting period after being hospitalized and a 3 day stay in the hospital for benefits to start again. These services are to help get a patient back home as soon as possible.

There are 100 home visits each year. If prescribed by the doctor for skilled nursing service, physical therapist and speech therapist to help keep the elderly out of the nursing home and to be able to stay in their own home.

Mary Beals, public relations officer of St. Marys Hospital in Nelsonville, showed slides of Athens, Perry and Hocking Counties visiting nurses, speech therapist, physical therapist and dietitian program to the clients.

James Seemore, Administrator of the professional health service of St. Marys Hospital in Nelsonville, explained the home health visiting services. He also stated he would service Pickaway County elderly until the Professional Home Health, Inc., the local visiting health service, received certification.

Directors Jerry Brown and Larry Lares are doing many of these home health services now and should receive certification within two months.

Commissioners Don Strous and Carl Schein attended the meeting.

Ardath Lynch, Executive Administrator of Central Ohio Area Agency on Aging; Dick Hoffman Supervisor of the Golden Buckeye Program, and Alta Gulberson reported on the activities of the program.

Vera Saunders, Senior Services Coordinator, reported that the Housing Complex designs were being completed by Architects Gene Milhoane and Jeff Glauan.

Twyla Lorentz, Director, reported on the finances and programs of the Center.

Sharon Eyerman, Information and Referral Director, who is now housed at the Center, reported demand for services was increasing. Information and Referrals services are needed in the county to inform the elderly about services available and where to receive the services.

Wanda Hamilton, Center and Supportive Service Director, helps keep the elderly in their homes. She holds meetings and serves with the Friendly Visitors to help the shut-ins.

Louise Heine is in charge of telephone assurance programs.

These programs give Pickaway County excellent service for Senior Citizens.

Thieves Hit Three Times In Ashville

Thieves struck at three locations in Ashville Thursday, according to reports at the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department.

Tools valued at $416 were taken from a garage owned by George Cummins, 214 Powell St.

The theft occurred between Tuesday and Thursday, according to Deputy Sheriff Billy Huffman, who said the lock on the garage door was broken by force.

The thieves apparently parked their car in an alley and climbed a small fence to steal the merchandise.

Tools taken include numerous wrenches, sockets, and micrometers.

A citizen band radio valued at $150 was taken from a car owned by Jo Ellen Irwin, 138 N. Long St., Ashville.

The Pace 23-channel CB radio is valued at $150, and the thieves committed an additional $75 damage to the door window of the vehicle during the break-in.

Margaret Shuttles, 11608 Hedges St., Ashville, told Deputy William Carmean that thieves demolished a Sears eight-track tape player while attempting to take it from her car.

The dash of the vehicle was also damaged, he said.

Deputy Dan Dewey will have to wait on the return of John Vanderpool from a vacation before he can complete a report on the break-in and robbery of his Route 2 home.

The house was apparently ransacked.

Thieves took 15 gallons of gasoline from a car owned by Martha Morrison, 5765 Tarlton Road.

The fuel was siphoned from the car.
